PA NEW OBSERVES

To the mother of each child born in Pennsylvania is sent a special baby book giving in simple language suggestions for proper care of the child, according to a booklet Pa New received from the state this morning. Seems that more and more attention is being given to the care of children.

The state of Pennsylvania conducts 111 tuberculosis clinics, 56 venereal clinics and 136 child health clinics. The latter, commonly known as well baby clinics, are purely educational in character, an attempt being made to instruct the mother in the proper care of the child that our too high infantile mortality may be reduced.

Farm boys who attended the camp near Rose Point several days last week learned a lot about cattle judging. Lawrence county will never fall short of cattle judges, for there are some lads who know just about all the prize points about cattle that there are to know. Judging is based on the type of animal, sex, quality, age, character of fleshing, symmetry and beauty of form, etc. The camp was under supervision of County Farm Agent H. R. McCulloch.

School buildings are quite deserted these days. Blinds are down on most of the windows and all is dormant until September.

Canaries and parrots can be seen in cages on many porches during this hot weather. The birds seem to enjoy the heat.

Lassman Found Drowned In Lake

Former Famous Tackle On New York University Football Team Drowning Victim

RIDE IN CANOE PROVES FATAL

(International News Service) BRIDGEVILLE, Pa., July 7.—The body of Al Lassman, famous New York University athlete, was found at the bottom of Long Lake today.

A coroner was summoned to conduct an inquest to determine the cause of death, at first believed heart trouble.

Lassman, former tackle of New York University football eleven, was last seen in a canoe on the lake. He had put out from a boy's camp. Later the canoe was observed floating without an occupant. Grappling hooks and drag nets were put out and shortly before dawn today the body was brought to the surface.

Lassman, whose mother lives in Boston, had been here assisting a counselor at a boy's camp. He went on the lake in the canoe alone. The water was calm and this led to the belief that the loss of Lassman from the canoe was the result of a heart stroke.

Lassman was an excellent swimmer. Last winter, he gained countrywide fame by the gallant rescue of a Detroit girl from the surf at Miami, Fla.

Lassman was twenty-four years old. In 1928, his fame as a football star had arisen to great heights and he was talked of as All-American football candidate. Playing with New York University against Carnegie Tech in 1928, Lassman suffered (Continued On Page Two)

Chicago Girl In Narrow Escape As Parachute Fails

Miss Mary Fahrney, 18-Years Old Making First Parachute Leap Has Close Call

BECOMES TANGLED IN ROPE LADDER

Rescuer Meets His Death After Untangling Girl And Saving Her Life

(International News Service) CHICAGO, July 7.—Nursing a sprained wrist, Miss Mary Fahrney, 18-year-old sub-deb, recalled with a shudder today her fight with a tangled parachute which held her suspended beneath an airplane yesterday, for two hours while fliers risked their lives in rescue attempts.

Bruno Schustek, a parachute jumper was hurled 600 feet to his death when he climbed down a knotted rope from another plane to aid the girl.

Miss Fahrney's parachute finally became dislodged by her weight and she was sprawled on the field a short distance from where Schustek's body fell. Although the chute became dislodged at an altitude of 1,000 feet, it opened and Miss Fahrney alighted with minor scratches, bruises and a wrenched wrist. It was her first parachute leap.

After several other fliers had failed to reach the girl from rope ladders suspended from other planes Schustek took the air and descended on a knotted rope. Just as he reached out to free the girl she fell and her parachute opened.

The girl's rescuer started to climb back up the rope, but lacked the strength and was snapped from the rope. He was killed instantly.

"Yelling up to Pilot L. F. Kline, I begged him to take me down ten feet from the ground and let me go," the girl recalled. "I felt sure that I was going to die. Kline wouldn't do it and told me to stay in my harness."

Miss Fahrney said her parachute tangled in the airplane's rope ladder as she climbed over the side. Because of the way the harness was strapped to her back she was powerless to climb back into the plane.

Special Session Of Senate Opens, Members Hostile

Sullen And Short-Tempered Senate Goes To Work Today On London Naval Treaty

WEATHER IS HOT, SO IS SENATE

Hardly Have Quarum—Fifty-Two Pledge To Stay On Job Until Work Is Finished

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, July 7.—A sullen and short-tempered senate, its services raw-edged from almost eighteen months of continuous session and the fearsome hobgoblins of the approaching election, convened in the Capital today at the call of President Hoover to act on the London Naval Treaty.

The weather was hot and so was the senate. The members came unwillingly to the session—so much so, in fact that it appeared doubtful today whether a quorum could be mustered to receive the President's message tomorrow. Nearly a score of the 96 members have already left the Capital (Continued On Page Two)

Merchant Evades Holdup Man And Makes His Getaway

Runs Away And Escapes As Masked Man Demands That He Put Up His Hands

Frank Mitchell, 907 East Washington street, who conducts a store at Allen and Superior streets, while on his way home Sunday morning about 12:30 o'clock, after closing his store, was stopped as he reached the first alley south of East Washington street on Allen street, by a masked man who stepped out from the darkness of the alley and demanded of Mr. Mitchell that he put up his hands.

Instead of complying with the demand of the masked holdup man, Mr. Mitchell ran and managed to make his getaway.

The police were notified and Lieutenant of Police Peter Hillers and Officer Longstreth answered the call and made a thorough investigation of the district without coming upon the man, who had stopped Mr. Mitchell.

Mr. Mitchell was not sure that the holdup man had a gun, as he did not waste any time making his getaway when the demand was made of him, and did not see whether or not the man had a gun.

There's a rattle of hammers a squeak of nails, and a din as the planks go in place, for the boys are preparing for quite a job of washing the building's face. For years it has stood in the wind and sun, and laughed at the snow and sleet it has stood four square as the clouds of dust came billowing up the street. But the dirt and grime have increased each year there's plenty of smut to be seen, but now is the time for a bath I guess for the building front must be clean. So the scaffold goes up with a rattle and din and the face washing job is begun, just so the place can be pretty again, the weather is ninety one.

AHEPA SENDS 150 TO BEAVER FALLS PROGRAM SUNDAY

Chapters Of Five Cities Unite For Initiation Ceremony; 300 Attend

One hundred and fifty persons, 75 of whom are members of the New Castle chapter of the Order of Ahepa, participated in a joint initiation and christening ceremony and open meeting sponsored by the Ahepa chapter of Beaver Falls at their lodge home in the Beaver Valley city, Sunday afternoon.

Ahepas from Pittsburgh, Cleveland and Youngstown, besides the Beaver Falls and New Castle delegations, took part in the program.

The initiation service at 2 o'clock, over which Supreme District Governor P. W. Katsafanas, Pittsburgh, officiated, inaugurated the program of the afternoon. A large class of new Ahepas were installed as members of the order at this time.

Immediately following the initiation ritual came a christening ceremony, at which the Rev. J. Papachristou, D. D., pastor of the Greek church here officiated.

Following the christening came the open meeting at which several guests of honor spoke. Presiding was District Deputy Governor James Chacona, of Franklin. The main address of the afternoon was delivered by Bart Richards, New Castle assemblyman and honorary member of the New Castle Ahepa organization for three years. Mr. Richards' message pointed out the fine points of the fraternity and served to explain the more important details of the order.

The Mayor of Beaver Falls, William Lewis, spoke after Mr. Richards, bringing the greetings of the city to the 300 or more members and friends making up the assemblage. After Mayor Lewis, Supreme Governor Katsafanas, who had come to preside over the initiation, offered remarks appropriate to the occasion. Brother Gus Economou, of Youngstown, active in Ahepa affairs there was the final speaker. His address was given in Greek.

Lunch was served to the visitors by members of the Beaver Falls chapter, the host for the day, at the conclusion of the speaking program.

tended by many delegates from United Presbyterian churches from many cities.

Auto traffic was almost as heavy yesterday as during July Fourth. State Highway patrolmen covered all the important highways and report no serious accidents up to late last night. Traffic was especially dense on the Youngstown road and at one time there were 29 cars and two big buses ascending the Harbor hill toward New Castle.

Contractors working on state highway contracts established a new high record for the week when they laid 50.18 miles of roadway during the week ending June 26, according to the latest detour bulletin issued by the state highway department. The total mileage poured for the year is 319.23.

Judging from the number of autos seen on the highways yesterday with baggage tied on the running boards, the tourist season is getting under way with a rush. Many cars were noted yesterday that were enroute with lots of baggage. Another thing noted was that many are carrying plates designating the city they come from. How about New Castle tourists? Are you advertising New Castle on your trips?

Several accidents have been reported recently at the curve in the Wilmington road, just beyond Walmo, when cars have gone over the embankment into the small ravine. Pa. News has always wondered why a guard fence was not erected at this point. Likewise the curve near Clover is another point where it seems a fence should be erected.

Practically all of the downtown churches have abandoned Sunday evening services for the remainder of the summer. Services will be resumed on Sunday evenings in September.

Rain of yesterday, while brief, would do a lot of good. Lawns around the city had begun to look as burned out as during the hottest days of August.

Radio Station KDKA was temporarily disabled last night, when lightning struck a power line of the transmitter station on the Greensburg pike, during one of the series of thunderstorms. The program was cut off at 9:30 o'clock, but broadcasting was resumed this morning.

By the way, what's happened to the armory project for New Castle, Veterans of Foreign Wars?

Lin Dilks, New Castle long distance runner, is certainly keeping faithfully at training. He was noted on the roads yesterday, trotting along despite the heat. He was attired in "shorts" though, and didn't seem to be minding the heat.

EXECUTE SLAYER IN CHAIR TODAY

Philadelphia Man Pays With His Life In Electric Chair At Rockview Prison

(International News Service)

ROCKVIEW PENITENTIARY, BELLEFONTE, Pa., July 7.—James Flori, 25, of Philadelphia, was electrocuted here today for the murder of Pasquale Livoy.

Flori was lead from death row at exactly seven o'clock. The single contact came when Robert Elliot, New York executioner, threw the switch at 7:02. Flori was pronounced dead by the prison physician at 7:06.

Flori was accompanied in his death march by the prison chaplain, Father McGreech. His body was claimed by relatives immediately after the execution.

Flori shot Livoy in Philadelphia, April 25, 1929. He claimed at his trial and before the pardon board that he shot in self defense. Livoy, Flori claimed, planned to put him "on the spot."

The commonwealth contended that Livoy was shot because he refused to pay tribute demanded by Flori and Amelio Scarana, both of whom were members of an alleged gangster mob.

Several pals, members of the same club in fact, decided to pass their vacation camping together in the mountains.

The day for the trip came, the men rode away on horses, and eventually the site was selected, the tent put up and the pals sat down to rest.

Somewhere a bottle or two of liquor appeared and began to go from hand to hand. In time one of the men became so drunk that he stretched himself upon the ground. The others, also were in stages distant from sobriety.

As would eventually occur, an argument arose principally between A, who was drunk in part, and B, who was stretched out totally drunk. As the argument grew hotter, A weaved his way to where B lay and kicked him heavily in the head, stunning him.

Then A went to where his horse was tied, saddled it, went back to the tent to pick up his belongings, intending to leave the camp.

As he was thus engaged, B arose unsteadily, reached for his gun nearby and aimed it at A.

But A saw him try it, and drawing his own revolver, shot B dead.

A was brought to trial and pleaded self-defense.

PARENTS HERE DECLARE STORY OF MARRIAGE UNTRUE

and they decided they would get married.

"Before he got the license he got two tickets to Montreal but when it came time to get the license he said Nedra couldn't get away. I said it was too bad and he said, listen Audrey, be a pal will you? Why can't you go over to the Municipal Building with me and say you're Nedra, just as a convenience. You and I will get the marriage license and be married only I'll really be marrying Nedra because her name will be on everything and no one will ever know the difference."

"After the marriage we went back to the apartment and when Nedra came home I said here's your husband. They went on their honeymoon but some time after they came back they began quarreling and finally Sherry left. His father asked me to come over and see him and I did. He said that his lawyers were of the opinion that it was I who had married Sherry, not Nedra and they wanted me to release him. My name isn't on any license."

A Lot of Lies

"The story is false" declared Mr. and Mrs. Baker. "It is true that Audrey went with Sherry to the License Bureau to get the license, but there is nothing illegal about that for in New York it is not necessary for the girl to appear when a license is procured. But as to Audrey's going through the ceremony for Nedra, it's ridiculous. We talked to Audrey over the long distance telephone and she said that the story credited to her in the papers was a lie, that she had never talked to newspaper representatives, and that she certainly had not gone through any marriage ceremony in Nedra's place."

"Nedra married Ernest Sherry in January (the Baker's have the marriage certificate in their possession) and since that time Nedra has continued working. Ernest is just a young man and while his father is a reputable dentist of New York City, he has not been out of college long enough to get himself established. Some little arguments arose over financial matters as they so often do in marriages and they decided to part. Audrey told us over the phone that Nedra's attorney was going to file a motion for an annulment of the wedding."

"Mr. Sherry is not a nephew of Sherry the restaurateur, as has been reported. He comes from a splendid family, and we know that he is a quiet well-mannered young man. The fact that Nedra and he have separated is unfortunate of course, but to print scandalous stories concerning the wedding is a matter which will bear some attention and we certainly intend to go into the matter. They never took a honeymoon to Montreal, for after the wedding they both went back to work."

Both Audrey and Nedra Baker are well known in New Castle. Audrey is a former student of Ned Wayburn's School of Dancing, and has appeared in a number of amateur productions here. Since last October both the girls have been in New York City.

COSMIC RAYS ANNOUNCE CREATION OF MATTER By Arthur Dev. Carpenter

With a sensitive electroscopie for registering the most penetrative ether waves, Millikan and Cameron carried on experiments with cosmic rays in 1927 that proved their power to penetrate 200 feet of water at Glen lake, California, which is the equivalent of 18 feet of lead. These rays having such penetrative energy, are believed by Professor Millikan to be the broadcasting of powerful atom-building processes out of positive and negative electrons—the birth of matter—and that cosmic rays do not originate in the stars, but in inter-stellar spaces. Millikan has shown that such energy, if generated in the stars, would fritter away in heat.

for the summer, special session or no special session. Another score were absent on week-end visits or on trips home to look after political fences.

Fifty-Two Will Stick

Whether the absentees can be lured back to torrid and torpid Washington for this July session remains to be seen. Republican leaders claim they have pledges from 32 members to stay on the job until there is some action. That number is barely three more than a quorum. Privately the same leaders admit they do not know whether they can hold a quorum or not. If the session promises to become protracted—and the treaty opponents grimly threaten to make it so—then the harassed senate leadership is doubtful of its ability to keep going.

President Hoover insisted that the senate ratify the London treaty before adjournment of the regular session. The senate didn't do so. He then made good his threat to keep the senate on the job through the medium of a special session until it did act.

He called the session against the advice of senate leaders, who warned him that in view of the Capital's mid-summer heat, the natural desire of the members to get into their own campaigns, and the length of the session just completed, there was real doubt as to whether a quorum could be held.

Lines Are Drawn

Thus the lines were drawn today for another test of strength between the White House and the senate. How it will end depends probably upon the thermometer and upon the resourcefulness of the treaty's opponents. If the opposition develops a real fight that bids fair to extend the session into August it is altogether probable the senate will take the bit in its teeth and recess until November. Mr. Hoover's wishes to the contrary notwithstanding.

Realizing the situation, administration leaders were bending every effort today toward getting an early vote.

To this city, the treaty opponents are led by senator Johnson (R) of California, and Senator Moses (R) of New Hampshire.

The strategy of the opposition is to prolong the session and to "thoroughly debate" the terms of the London pact. The longer the vote can be delayed the shorter will the senate's temper become, and the keener the members' desire to get home.

Message Tomorrow

The brunt of the treaty's defense apparently is to fall on the shoulders of a small group of Republicans and Democrats—Senator Fess (R) of Ohio, Senator Allen (R) of Kansas, both of whom spent the week-end in conference with Mr. Hoover at Raptid.

Senator Swanson (D) of Virginia, ranking member of the foreign relations committee, and the two senators who were among the delegates sent to London, Reed (R) of Pennsylvania, and Robinson (D) of Arkansas.

President Hoover's special message, urging ratification, probably will be sent to the senate tomorrow—when and if a quorum can be mustered to receive it.

Pouring Amiesite In Sampson Street

Employees working under the direction of Harry Moore, commissioner of the city department of streets, today are filling in holes in Sampson street. It was reported at the streets department, Sampson street between Grant street and the new pavement in Sampson street has been one of the roughest thoroughfares in town. Amiesite is being poured into the holes.

Reject Arlington Avenue Zone Plan

Council today met in the city building and reported negatively from committee an ordinance which would have changed the zoning district in Arlington avenue between Jackson and Wilson avenue. It was the first ordinance written. Recently a petition asked for a change between Jackson avenue and Gibson street.

Davis To Board Up Rural Avenue Spring

Councilman Clayton H. Reeves today instructed Sanitary Policeman Chauncey Davis to immediately board up the spring in Rural Avenue. A week ago, it is reported, the city sent a notice to the owner of the spring to close the water, which has been condemned by Dr. William Steen, city health officer.

"Pole Sitter" Claims Title

Brocton, Mass., Man Claims Flag-Pole Sitting Record Up Twenty-Fifth Day

ERIE MAN HAS COME TO EARTH

(International News Service) BROCKTON, Mass., July 7.—Fair weather after the lightning, thunder and rain storm greeted Ralph D'Agostino, "king" of flagpole sitters, today as he entered the twenty-fifth day aloft.

"Dagling D'Agostino," as he has been called, broke the flagpole squatting record Saturday night, a record hung up by "Shipwreck" Kelly, of twenty-three days, seven hours.

Kelly was reported aloft on a flagpole at Atlantic City and the local "dangler" said he was ready for an endurance race. He had planned to stay in his chair atop his homemade flagpole in his back yard for thirty days. Now it all depends on "shipwreck."

"The dangler" is "terrible disappointed," he said today. Only a few dollars have been put in the coin box set up in the yard and the picture postcards of their father do not find a ready market from the hands of the D'Agostino children. Neither have the folks paid much attention to the "Dangler's" boatwain's chair, canvas sack in which he sleeps and bathes and his fifty foot flag pole.

Erie Man Descends

ERIE, Pa., July 7.—Captain Paul Russell, who came down last night from his perch atop a flagpole here where he had been sitting for 529 hours, today watched with interest bulletins from Brockton, Mass., where Ralph D'Agostino is in his 25th day of "sitting." Capt. Russell, who ascended his perch June 14 claims a previous record of 40 days and nights atop a pole.

NEW BRIDGE IS NEEDED

WHILE it has been mentioned heretofore in these columns, it is a matter that needs emphasizing—the need of a new bridge across the Mahoning river near the southern edge of the city on the New Castle to Beaver Valley route.

This iron structure that spans the river at the present time was sufficient years ago, when there was only light traffic, but the bridge, in addition to being exceedingly narrow, impresses us as being very frail for the traffic demands of today.

It is understood that the matter of replacing the structure has been considered, and that there is some question as to responsibility for erection of a new structure, whether it comes under the state highway department entirely under the recent acquisition of bridges on state highways, or whether the county or city have a share in the cost of a new structure, because one approach is in the city.

The projected new bridge would be one that would cross the river diagonally, so as to eliminate the curve hazards that now exist in the approaches, we understand. This of course would be a necessity in a new structure, and would eliminate much of the traffic danger than now confronts motorists at this place.

We know of no bridge anywhere in this section that is as sorely in need of replacement by a substantial structure as this one, and our only hope is that this project will not be delayed until some serious accident has occurred because of conditions.

This bridge should be the next structure to be replaced in Lawrence county.

BACKWARD GEOGRAPHY

Economic isolation is no more, and cultural isolation is beginning to disappear. Geographic isolation, however, is still a stubborn fact. It may seem to disappear in time of peace, when the elaborate system of modern communications seems to destroy distance. But in war roads are destroyed and ships venture out at their peril. The complex communications system is one of the first things to go and the age-old geographic values reassert themselves. Geographic isolation, even when it is as slight as it is in England's case, becomes priceless for the nation which desires primarily to defend itself.

The British house of commons voted down a measure that would have put into effect that long talked of plan to connect England with the continent by a tunnel from Calais to Dover. Several excuses were offered but it is obvious that the motivating reason was the fear of obliterating that slender isolation afforded England by the English Channel. Europe is eternally like that. The mutual fears and suspicions of her countries rob them of many economic and commercial benefits.

How different is the American view of international boundaries! The United States and Dominion of Canada with thousands of miles of common border are forever building international bridges and canals and are at this very time planning a great international canal connecting the Great Lakes with the Sea.

NO FEDERAL INTERFERENCE IN EDUCATION

Why should there be a Federal Department of Education with a Cabinet officer at the head? There has been strong and steady pressure for its institution, but the arguments against it remain as forcible as ever. Three groups of the National Education Association, meeting at Cleveland, have gone on record in favor of the scheme; but there was also great opposition to it. Further encroachment on the rights and duties of the States is highly undesirable for many reasons. This conclusion seems to have been reached by the President's recently appointed commission on education, as well as by a similar body sponsored by the association itself.

A central Federal authority to act as a sort of clearing house for educational research, is approved by both bodies. If this means the discussion of problems with which the States have to deal there is nothing especially objectionable about it, though there is always danger to free thought in too much official red tape. But the principle that education is a local, not a Federal, concern should always be kept in mind. Uniformity is not the end and aim of instruction. Our schools are designed to meet the needs of the people whom they reach, not to supply a procrustean bed for the development of the youthful mind, asserts the Philadelphia Inquirer. "There is too much crushing out of individuality, as it is, in modern methods of education. 'Why can't you let it alone?' Lord Melbourne once asked an importunate delegation. A good many things might well be let alone.

Idle As A Painted Ship.
 Equal, If You Have $10.
 Interpreting The Lord.
 Pity Small Birds.

By ARTHUR G. BRISBANE
 (Copyright, 1930, King Features

The lower end of Manhattan, where this was written, was quiet on July 4. Bulls and bears were all away, sorrowing or floating. Everything was "as idle as a painted ship, upon a painted ocean."

At this deserted corner of Broad and Wall streets, the Stock exchange looks on Morgan's office, and Morgan's office looks on the United States treasury. To rewrite Byron, and "musing there an hour alone," you dreamed that stocks might still go up.

Long lines of longshoremen at the edge of the East river, waiting for jobs, usually visible from this office window, were missing.

Speakeasies, always plentiful near a newspaper office, or any factory paying good wages, were open, selling explosives more powerful than fireworks.

Americans that have long known how to work, are now learning how to play.

Acting Mayor Allen of Atlanta, Ga., saying: "I have wanted to do something for my fellow beings all my life," released 200 prisoners from Atlanta jails on Thursday, at midnight, that they might celebrate July 4 in freedom.

It is undesirable to take laws and their punishments lightly, but the acting mayor, with the approval of his superior, Mayor Couch, had a good answer for critics.

The prisoners freed were not felons but jailed because they lacked from $5 to $20 to satisfy fines for petty offenses.

If, as we allege on July 4, men are really created equal, it seems strange to keep one in jail and set the other free, because the other has $10.

Doctors told Justice Hanson in New York, that a 13-year-old boy, name not revealed, must die unless an operation were performed.

The mother would have no operation. Her son might be dying, but she had no right to "interfere with the Lord's plans." If he wanted to take the boy back, He had a right to him.

Justice Hanson, deciding that the Lord had no such plans, ordered an operation, in spite of the mother, and the boy will recover.

The attitude of the mother, strange to us, in 1936, would have seemed natural some time ago.

When the use of anesthetics was first introduced in England, the clergy almost without exception, denounced it, saying the Lord wanted us to suffer, and doctors and not to make patients unconscious and free from pain while their legs were cut off. That was cheating the Lord.

A young Scotch doctor produced the right answer, advising clergymen to read in Genesis, how "the Lord caused a deep sleep to fall upon Adam," before he took out his rib.

Since the Lord had operated on Adam, first making him unconscious, the young doctor said he had the right to do the same. He won.

A noblewoman and a midwife were both put to death because the midwife had endeavored to diminish the woman's pains in childbirth.

At this time of year, in many places, you see on the ground young birds feathers not fully grown, wings very weak.

It is a time to keep cats indoors, and tell small boys that to injure such a bird is cowardly as it would be to hurt a baby, too young to walk.

Gone are the days of happy and practical tax free great estate owners in England.

The Duke of Montrose wanted to sell 25,000 of his acres including part of the "bonnie, bonnie banks of Loch Lomond" and some beautiful islands in the lake.

Not one bid was offered.

The provident duke, sixth to bear the title, wanted to raise money, in advance, to pay his own death duties.

MacDonald's Social-Labor government had refused to take land now instead of cash later, missing a chance to experiment in land socialism and single tax.

M. Poincare, formerly president and premier of France, describes our new tariff as "selfish."

If true, that is really TOO bad. Everything that European nations have done, from their war of 1914 to their refusal to pay us what they owe in full, is so entirely UNSELFISH that we really ought to be ashamed of ourselves.

How shameful to enact a tariff to protect our labor and industry, when we might be throwing our markets open to cheap labor abroad.

Dear Hints and Dints:—One evening recently I was sitting at the kitchen sink engaged in the homely and unpoetic task of paring turnips, not thinking of anything in particular. Quite suddenly an invisible fairy came and waved her wand, transforming the kitchen sink into the living room of my old New England home.

A little girl was jumping up and down, begging mother to allow her to go with the hired man, who was just ready to start with several barrels of potatoes, ready for planting in the field beyond the maple woods. Mother was shaking her head and saying: "You know I worry about you when the man drives old Blueberry; he is liable to run away or balk; just as he takes a notion!" But the little girl pleaded so hard she was allowed to go. She pulled a turnip from the garden and climbed to the top of a barrel, her sunbonnet hanging down her back and her curls flying, as she wiped the dirt from her turnip on her dress—naughty child!

All went well until a rabbit jumped out in front of old Blueberry; then the fun began. He ran like a deer, bumping over the rough road, but she hung on until the wagon struck a stump, then out went the barrels and the little girl. But kind Providence set her down on a bed of moss unhurt. Her raw turnip still in her hand.

Fate has bumped me along over some pretty rough roads since the old days, but the same kind Providence that protects children, fools and drunks has always dropped me down unhurt in a mossy place.

American Culture Declared Beneficiary Of Folger Fund

Millions For Shakespeare Building And Endowment In Washington Lauded As Gain For Intellectual Life Of Nation And For Capital

Great cultural benefits are predicted as a result of the fund of $10,000,000 left by Henry Clay Folger, long and official of the Standard Oil Company, as an endowment for the Shakespeare memorial library in Washington, which is to house the priceless Folger collection of the works of the poet. The country and the National Capital are declared to be great gainers.

Renewed interest in Shakespeare in America is foreseen by the PORT WAYNE NEWS-SENTINEL, recalling that "there has been much proper lamenting the fact that while in every town of any size in England, Germany, France, Russia and Austria, there are, every year, Shakespearean seasons of generous length have been shamefully neglecting his genius for more than a quarter of a century. No more important step to implant and revive the art of Shakespeare in the United States was ever taken than that of the late Henry Clay Folger, New York capitalist, for many years actively connected with the Standard Oil Company, as president and chairman of the board.

"It will be the most appropriate memorial, both to Shakespeare and to one whose bequest should go far to spread Shakespearean knowledge in the United States."

The suggestion that "engraved upon the portals of the memorial should be the finest tribute ever paid to the Bard of Avon, by the late Robert G. Ingersoll. 'An ocean of intellect whose waves lapped every shore or thought' is made by the OKLAHOMA CITY OKLAHOMAN, while the PASADENA STAR-NEWS, referring to the 'priceless riches' in the works of this author, with their 'riches of imagery, refinements of culture and adornments of learning' finds it of interest that 'a man of large life to drink deep of the fountains of Shakespearean wit and wisdom.'"

"Nowhere else, even in England," says the NEW YORK WORLD, "are there such advantages for study of his period as the institution will offer. The Folger Shakespeare Memorial will be a great addition to the attractions of Washington as a museum city. They are already considerable. The National Museum is growing. Some day the valuable exhibits of the Agricultural Museum may be worthily housed. Such buildings as the Pan-American and National Geographic headquarters, the Patent Office, the Library of Congress and the Government Printing Office have some pretensions as museums. Private donors like W. W. Corcoran have remembered the city. In the Freer Gallery, for example, are unique opportunities for viewing and studying the art of Whistler."

That the gift "strengthens the position of the Library of Congress in its research character as a resort for workers in all fields" is the conclusion of the PROVIDENCE JOURNAL, as it points out: "The resources of the Folger Memorial will be exactly as available to students as if it were under the roof of the Congressional Library. The Journal views it as 'an interesting tribute to Mr. Folger's Alma Mater that he lays upon the trustees of Amherst College the duty of administering the library and its great funds.' That paper continues: 'Longfellow once envied Shakespeare his undisputed position in literature as an author by critic vexed; but the Folger Shakespeare Memorial shows that the great dramatist has further distinction of being a poet upon whom a kindly fortune has been lavished in order to assemble his works and everything bearing upon their interpretation for the benefit of the present and future ages.'"

"The plays of Shakespeare" record the ST. LOUIS GLOBE-DEMOCRAT "do not draw such large audiences as they did in the years gone by. Talking pictures, the radio and many other things were causing the flames that has burned for centuries and which should now burn bright, to flicker, and professors were finding it difficult to interest students in these 16th century dramas. The large sum provided by Mr. Folger arrives in the nick of time, and with such backing a genius like Shakespeare should be

In the end the praises said
 Are but simple and but few.
 This they mention of the dead:
 He was gentler, he was true.

Those who loved him, teary-eyed
 Find his glory and success
 Not in stately pomp and pride
 But in kindly thoughtfulness.

In sad groups his neighbors stand
 Having only this to say:
 They will miss the friendly hand
 Waved in greeting, day by day.

Some remember he was kind,
 Some remember he was true,
 Others carry long in mind
 Little deeds he used to do.

All the praises of a man
 Which in mourning we rehearse
 Are of something finer than
 Things of pocket and of purse.

New Jersey Girl Killed By Lover; He Tries Suicide

Find Body Of Young Girl Dead In Automobile, Young Man Seriously Wounded

SUICIDE PACT WAS PLANNED

Paterson New Jersey Stirred By Tragedy—Young Couple "Denied Right To Love"

(International News Service) PATERSON, N. J., July 7. — "I am denied the privilege of happiness in life, so we go happily to death. We hope our friends can so realize the existence of real love."

The above note, signed "Roderic and Jennie" was used as the key today by police in reconstructing the tragedy of a Roderic Meakle, 28-year old violinist of Ridgewood, N. J., and Jennie Brauer, 22, a beautiful girl, caught in love's whirlpool.

The body of the girl was found slumped across the seat of an automobile, where she had been shot to death Saturday night and hours later at almost the same spot police discovered the young violinist staggering half conscious from thick underbrush.

That Meakle, who is the son of William E. Meakle, vice president and secretary of the Paterson Savings Institution, shot the girl and then himself in a suicide pact, was evident, police said.

Faces Murder Charge
Meakle, who is in serious condition in a hospital, will be charged with murder, if he survives, authorities said.

According to police the couple made the suicide agreement after meeting with Meakle's wife, Mrs. Meakle, told of her husband's love for Jennie, had refused to divorce him.

Notes left by the lovers indicated they had gone to Niagara Falls and on their return plotted their deaths. The letters, written on Niagara Falls hotel paper, were found beside the girl's body.

A second note, addressed to the girl's uncle in Brooklyn, was signed "Jennie" and told of the death pact.

Meakle's parents, despite statements of police, said that their son was not married and Miss Jessie Murphy, a school teacher here, said by police to have secretly married the violinist in 1926, denied the marriage.

SIR CONAN DOYLE DIES IN LONDON OF HEART ATTACK

time in the study and propagation of spiritualism, he still remained, and probably always remain known to the world as the creator of Sherlock Holmes, genius in the art of scientific deduction and detective without a peer.

Sir Arthur was born in Edinburgh on May 22, 1859. He studied for medicine, and his learnings in this science cropped up continually in the fantastic adventures of his fiction detective. He practiced as a physician for many years before giving himself over to fiction writing, but together with his unfillable place in English letters he combined such varied enterprises as exploration, travel and politics.

Sir Arthur's death resulted from a heart attack, it was the generally weakening condition of his heart which necessitated the trip abroad in an effort to revive his failing health, and although no great improvement had been shown within the past few months, his death was unexpected.

Was Great Traveller
His travels included trips into the Arctic regions and to the west coast of Africa at a time when the latter was virtually untouched save by the most hardy adventurers.

Sir Arthur's first important literary work was the world-famous "study in Scarlet" in which he introduced to an admiring world for the first time the colorful figures of Sherlock Holmes and the Ubiquitous Dr. Watson, in 1887.

Others followed in quick succession, Doyle alternating his masterpieces of crime fiction with hair-raising stories of adventure.

In 1889 he wrote his famous collection of detective stories under the title of "The Sign of the Hour," and in 1891 came further doings of Sherlock Holmes in the volume "The Adventures of Sherlock Holmes."

Studied Spiritualism
Plays, novels, novelettes, short stories, essays, treatises and articles flowed from his pen. Sir Arthur from time to time deserting the fictional detective hero he had created for profound works on war and politics. One of the greatest of the latter was a book dealing with the Boer War, in which the writer attempted to set forth the causes of this conflict within the British empire. This volume ran to 100,000 copies, and was printed in twelve different languages.

It was ten years ago that Conan Doyle deserted Sherlock Holmes and gave over his entire time to the study of spiritualism, with Sir Oliver Lodge noted British scientist, Doyle became one of the world's most determined protagonists of this study, and while commentators on both sides of the Atlantic found bitter fault with his claims and experiments, all admitted that if there was one man who actually believed in transmigration and was sincere in all the claims he made regarding spirit messages—that man was Conan Doyle.

Distinguished Family
Sir Arthur's experiments with Ecceplasm and Spirit photographs attracted worldwide attention, and one of his most valued possessions was a hand which he claimed was part of a disembodied spirit. To supporters and scoffers alike he showed this exhibition, and while critics outspokenly declared it a simulation in wax, he remained steadfast in his contention it was solidified ectoplasm from a spirit's body.

"Sherlock Holmes is dead," Doyle said a few weeks ago. "I never wish to revive him again. I wish to be known to posterity not as the creator of a fictional detective, but as a pioneer in the science of spiritualism."

Conan Doyle, who received his knighthood from King Edward in 1902, came from a distinguished family. He was the son of Charles Doyle, an artist, and nephew of Richard Doyle, famous member of the staff of Punch. He was twice married, and is survived by two sons and a daughter.

FIRE FIGHTERS GROW STALE FROM LACK OF FIRES

By RUTH JANE WILLIAMS
International News Service Staff Correspondent

GENEVA, July 7.—A violent but purely imaginary fire broke out at the St. Antoine Prison here.

Several hundred prisoners assisted in the spectacle which provided the brave firemen of Geneva with an opportunity to test out all their latest equipment and fire-fighting theories.

No prisoners escaped, in spite of the generous supply of ladders lining the jail walls. For they knew the fire was a fake.

So few fires occur in Geneva that the fire department had to invent annual plays to give the fire-fighters something to do. Every spring some big public building or institution has to be sacrificed to the hook and ladder boys for a day.

They are gladdened by imaginary flames and saved by the heroism and hose of the fire department.

Last year a large excursion boat was given a fictitious baptism of fire, while the fire-warriors whetted their appetites and ruined their suits by swimming about saving imaginary passengers and checking the blaze.

The prison fire, this year's conflagration, was one of the most successful yet conquered by the fire crew. The cell inhabitants expressed their fullest approval.

Most All Wheat Fields Are Ripe
Lawrence County Farmers May Start Reaping Latter Part Of This Week

Farmers of Lawrence county will start reaping their wheat fields probably in the latter part of this week, according to County Farm Agent H. R. McCulloch. On most of the farms, says the farm agent, the wheat is ripe and ready to cut. Some crops are yet a little early for reaping.

No estimate can as yet be made as to what this year's yield for the county will be. The yield is more than ever somewhat of a mystery because of the damaging frosts of the past winter and spring. Many wheat fields were completely froze out, while others were almost untouched.

Denies Divorce To Slippery Rock Man

Judge Campbell Hands Down
Decision In Ed. Sowash
Case

SLIPPERY ROCK, Pa., July 7.—Although there had been evidence to show a lack of domestic harmony for which both were to some extent to blame, Judge James O. Campbell, in a decision handed down today, refused Edward F. Sowash, former Slippery Rock cobbler, a divorce from Sarah E. Sowash.

Sowash charged cruel and barbarous treatment which compelled him to surrender the possession of the family roof to his wife, while he retired to humble shanty "somewhere in Slippery Rock."

Mrs. Sowash had testified she had frequently attacked her husband with a knife as charged by her mate, the court recalled, but at the same time had insisted these little pranks were done only in fun.

Sowash, on the other hand, it was recalled, admitted choking his wife at divers times, leaving marks, and on other occasions twisting her arms and shoulders. But he had insisted that even these little lapses of conduct had no ulterior motive behind them.

He choked his wife purely in fun, he had testified, with no intent to injure. Simply a friendly tussle, "to use the words of the witness."

"The manner of each on the stand makes it difficult to determine which is more responsible for their domestic troubles," the opinion reads, and another case is cited in which the court found that where each of the parties to a divorce suit has "committed a matrimonial offense," neither can be granted a divorce.

Refusing the divorce, the court placed the costs upon Sowash.

Gutenberg Bible To Be Purchased

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, July 7.—The Federal Government is going to spend $1,500,000 for a collection of rare literature including the noted Gutenberg Bible. They will be placed in the Congressional Library.

The books are known as the Voil-behr collection and comprise 8,000 volumes of early writings on countless subjects.

Congress authorized the purchase and included the expenditure in the second deficiency bill.

The upper class isn't much different, except that it says "Gotta cigar?" instead of "Gotta cigarette?"

Peter's Adventures

MERRY SPRING-TAIL COMES TO A SAD END

Water measurer knew his lively cousins. Almost before he had finished telling, they had done it—skipped off across the water. But alas for poor little Spring-Tail. Not content with skipping over the surface, he took a notion that he would like to play at the bottom of the pool. Catching hold of a weed stalk, he pulled his body down through the shining water—his body was so light that unless he had something to hold on to it wouldn't have sunk. Pond-Skater, however, skinned right on and went so fast it was doubtful if ever he knew what happened to his cousin. Brown Beetle and Water Measurer and Peter were watching, and they saw a gruesome sight. Out of the mud near the weed stalk, down which Spring-Tail was crawling, appeared a flat, fat, ugly-looking creature, which slowly stretched up two crab-like arms and seized the merry little water-hopper in a grip of steel. Spring-Tail tried his best to squirm away, but was helpless—a sad little weakling in the grasp of a giant.

Peter determined to go to Spring-Tail's aid. Jumping into the pool, he tried to catch the cruel monster, unmindful that the cruel monster might turn on him and give him a bite for his trouble. Luckily for Peter, the monster, did nothing of the sort—he was cowardly as well as cruel. He sank back into the mud from which he had come, taking Spring-Tail with him. The captor and his captive disappeared in the oozy depths. Peter shuddered. Brown Beetle grumbled. And Water Measurer wept salty tears of sorrow for his merry cousin. "The last hope is vanished," sobbed

JUMPING INTO THE POOL HE TRIED TO CATCH THE CRUEL MONSTER.

KDKA To Operate On 200,000 Watts

Powerful Transmitting Station Is Being Constructed On Farm

PITTSBURGH, July 7.—Super-power will characterize the new transmitting station of KDKA, now being constructed on a 30-acre farm at Saxenburg.

Power of 200,000 watts, 4000 times that drawn by the average electric iron in the home, will be fed into an antenna that covers six acres of ground by six water-cooled super-tubes that require two weeks each in manufacture. Each requires a plate voltage of 30,000, 100 times more than a broadcast receiver.

All of this power will be controlled by small push-buttons, ranged before the operator in a control booth jutting out into the main operating room. A crystal control circuit will keep KDKA's frequency to within 10 cycles of its assigned wavelength.

The transmitter house, built atop a ridge of hills, 20 miles from downtown Pittsburgh, is a story and a half brick structure housing $500,000 worth of radio apparatus.

The operating room, containing the control panels and long and short wave transmitters, is just above the power room, which is in the semi-basement.

His illness is reported to be due to a pericentis suffered during the world war.

10% Reduction

as low as $5 down
no payment until October
$1 only during cold months
2 years to pay balance

If we can install an Automatic Gas Burner in your home in July

This unusual offer of a full 10% reduction in price and extremely liberal payment terms if you let us put in a Surface Combustion Gas Burner during July, frankly are for the purpose of getting prospective users of gas heat to act now!

Last Fall in the rush of heating equipment installations we were forced to disappoint hundreds of our customers because there simply wasn't time to take care of all. We want to be able to serve everyone this season and accordingly we make the 10% price sacrifice so that our installation crew can get a big start on the season's work.

AS LITTLE AS $5 DOWN

Terms never were more liberal. As little as $5 will do for a down payment. You needn't pay anything more until October. During December, January and February payments will be only $1 per month. And you have 24 months to take care of the balance.

But, remember, this offer is good only for orders we receive during July with permission to make immediate installation. The full installed price of $185 goes back into effect at the close.

GAS HEAT FOR EVERYONE

Every family interested in improving home living conditions wants automatic gas heat. Everyone knows how much more satisfactory it is than old fashioned hand fired methods. Everyone knows how the uniform temperature, that gas heat provides, protects the health of the whole family. And every woman knows that gas heat cuts housework in half and leaves her free of all heating troubles. Everyone knows all these advantages of gas heat but many are held back from it by a mistaken idea as to its cost and the cost of equipment.

FITS IN ANY FURNACE

With the Surface Combustion Gas Burner you do not need a new furnace or boiler. It slips into any coal furnace or heating boiler without changing your heating system in the least. And particularly for the duration of this offer you can have the change made with hardly any outlay... as little as $5 will do. Gas heat is economical, too. Because of the automatic controls and thermostatic regulators, no fuel ever is wasted. Just enough and only enough is used to keep your home at even temperature.

ASK FOR FREE ESTIMATE

And when you install a gas heating machine under your plan you do not "buy a pig in a poke." Our heating engineers will gladly give you a reliable estimate of the season's fuel cost. You can know in advance of purchase just about what it will cost to heat your home.

Further, your gas heating installation is guaranteed to heat your home to your entire satisfaction.

If you will send in the coupon below or telephone the Gas Office we will arrange to give you a free estimate on heating your home... without obligation. It will pay you to act now while you can save 10% and enjoy our liberal Summer purchase payment terms.

Plan Drive To Check Aerial Rum Runners

Increase In Smuggling By Plane
Expected Over Lake
Erie

CLEVELAND, O., July 7.—Enforcement of anti-smuggling laws by Canadian port officials will result in establishments of a "rum row" of vessels just inside the Canadian waters of Lake Erie, Coast Guard officials here believe.

The existence of a "rum row" like that off the 12-mile limit of the Atlantic Coast, has been rumored for some time, since small boats, unable to cross the lake, have repeatedly arrived with liquor in Ohio ports.

A high Coast Guard official said today that he anticipated trouble both from airplane rum-runners and "mother ships" anchored in Canadian waters. The ships, he said, probably will leave Eastern Canadian ports, paying the double export bond provided in the new Canadian statute. The ships will cruise along the international boundary and send small boats off toward the Ohio shore, he believes. The forfeited Canadian bond will be charged against the price of the liquor.

Airplanes, Coast Guard officials pointed out, can easily fly across the lake in an hour, and with weather favorable could cross without being seen.

"We anticipate a new wave of air rum-running," the Coast Guard official said. "We have a squad of seaplanes under construction now to check this probable move."

Evidently Mr. Hoover will have opportunity to exercise his special talents. He is at his best in time of disaster.

And now many a graduate hunting a job will learn that a sheepskin isn't as useful as steer hide.

I. O. O. W. PICNIC.
It was announced today that the I. O. O. F. picnic sponsored by the Beaver County Booster Committee will be held at Cascade Park on Saturday, July 19. A good program is being arranged for the outing.

These are the times that try men's soles.

BRITANNIC WILL SET A NEW STANDARD IN CABIN SHIPS

The new 27,000-ton White Star liner Britannic, the world's largest cabin ship and Britain's greatest motor vessel, is scheduled to arrive at New York today, July 7th, on her maiden voyage from Liverpool, according to a message received by A. J. Goldman, Travel Department of the Lawrence Savings & Trust Co.

Built at a time when the science of marine engineering and ship propulsion is proceeding at a rapid pace, the Britannic enters the merchant service an outstanding product of the best engineering minds in Europe—the "last word" in ship construction.

In appearance the Britannic is quite different from anything that has yet left a British shipyard. She is modelled on distinctly modern lines, with straight stem, cruiser stern and two pole masts, slightly raked. These features, accentuated by two huge squat oval funnels set far apart and surmounting a great sweep of lofty sheltered decks, suggest the solidity and power that is in her and easily make her one of the most striking vessels in the transatlantic service.

The new motor vessel was built in the famous ship yards of Harland and Wolff, at Belfast, Ireland, where the first Britannic, a 5,000-ton vessel, left the ways in 1874. Here also was constructed the second Britannic, which was torpedoed early in the World War.

The new Britannic, which looks like a huge palatial motor yacht, is 680 feet long, has a beam of 82 feet, a moulded depth of 44 feet, and is of 27,000 tons gross register.

She has accommodations for 1,550 passengers divided equally into three classes, cabin, tourist and third-class. Being a motor vessel, there has been a great saving in the space allotted to propulsive machinery in other types of vessels.

In the cabin class, the Britannic can carry 500 passengers, comfortably housed in attractive staterooms, artistically furnished and resembling such the bedroom of the modern home. Some of these accommodations are arranged in suites on A Deck, in varying schemes of color and decoration. Each suite has a lobby connecting the various rooms, a recess for trunks and other baggage, and private bath panelled in pastel colors.

Enon Valley Road Not As Yet Open

Contractor Delayed In Completing Connecting Link Of Highway

While the contractors in charge said that the new road from Enon Valley to the Beaver county line would possibly be opened by July 4th, it was found impossible to complete the work in that time and the road is still closed.

Another week should see the road opened from Enon Valley boro to the new bridge, but the stretch beyond the bridge is still closed and will probably be closed for two or three weeks yet.

Congressman Temple Sees Progress Under Hoover Administration

(Special to The News)
WASHINGTON July 7.—Representative Henry W. Temple of Washington, Pennsylvania, chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, today issued the following statement through the Republican National Committee:

"Foundations for future peace have been greatly strengthened in the sixteen months that Herbert Hoover has guided the destinies of the nation."

"During this period more progress has been made in the field of development of good will between the United States and other nations than in many years before. There have been a number of contributing causes both through our own actions and that of other nations."

"(1) Negotiations of the London Naval Limitation Treaty, putting an end to competitive warship construction between the United States and Great Britain and Japan."

"(2) American adherence to the protocol of the World Court under amendments designed to meet the Senate reservations."

"(3) Proclamation of the Kellogg-Briand Treaty renouncing war as an instrument of national policy and the mobilization of international public opinion against Russia and China, both of which are signatories to the pact."

"(4) Completion of war debt negotiations and the settlement with France, Australia and Germany of war debts and obligations."

"(5) The President's preinaugural road will mission to Central and South America and the reception in the United States to Prime Minister Ramsey MacDonald, of Great Britain, and President-elect Ortiz Rubio, of Mexico; Julio Prestes, of Brazil, and Dr. Enrique Olaya of Colombia."

"(6) Assistance rendered Mexico in speedily ending the armed revolt in that country early in 1929."

"(7) Settlement of the Tacna-Arica dispute between Chile and Peru which had constantly involved the United States in friction between these two countries because of the long standing undertaking of the United States to act as arbitrator."

"(8) Manning of the Latin-American missions with chiefs of mission appointed almost without exception from the service so that now, for the first time, Latin-America is diplomatically manned by a force trained for its duties, speaking the languages of its people and free of political considerations."

"(9) Appointment to the major posts in Europe of diplomats of long service, or men of senatorial experience familiar with the processes of American government and information."

"(10) Adoption of a new policy in dealing with Haiti under which a new local government was set up and the gradual withdrawal of American Marines was decided upon."

"The most difficult problem which confronted the Administration, and the one to which the President gave his immediate attention was that of competition in naval armaments. This competitive building of war ships in categories other than of capital vessels had left the United States far behind and in a position where if it were to have parity with Great Britain and proper ratios with Japan, it would have to extend its program through the expenditure of two billion dollars during the next six or seven years. But of even as great moment was that this competitive building in itself created international frictions and sources of danger."

"Previous efforts to bring about an agreement between the United States and Great Britain in the matter of limitation of auxiliary vessels and particularly of cruisers had been unsuccessful. However, President Hoover was convinced that an understanding could be reached and to that end he opened negotiations with Ramsey MacDonald, Prime Minister of Great Britain, within a month after his inauguration, through former Vice President Charles G. Dawes, whom he appointed Ambassador to the Court of St. James."

"Extending over a period of eight months, these negotiations culminated in the calling of the London Conference to which the United States sent the strongest delegation it had ever sent abroad consisting of Secretaries Stimson and Adams, Ambassadors Dwight W. Morrow and Hugh Gibson, and Senators David A. Reed of Pennsylvania and Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas."

"The Conference ultimately reached an agreement by which parity with Great Britain in all types of war craft

Supreme Court To Hear Appeal On Election Dispute

Will Meet Early In August To Air Dispute On Luzerne County Controversy

PHILADELPHIA, July 7.—The Pennsylvania State Supreme court will meet either late this month or early in August at which time arguments will be heard on the appeal growing out of the Luzerne county ballot controversy. Justice John M. Kephard has announced. The original date for the hearing was September 29th.

The exact time of the hearing will depend upon the arrival of the documents pertaining to the case from the Luzerne county courts and the formal request that the hearing be advanced.

Upon the decision of the higher court depends whether Gifford Pinchot, former governor, or Francis Shunk Brown, will carry the colors of the regular Republican organization into the fall election. At present Pinchot holds the nomination by a plurality of more than 20,000 but Brown contends the 60,000 votes of Luzerne county were cast on illegal ballots. Should Brown's contention, which was rejected by the lower court, be upheld by the higher court, he would win the nomination as Pinchot would lose more than 25,000 votes if the Luzerne county ballots are thrown out.

Taking the stand that he is the legally elected nominee Pinchot indicated today he would not ask for an advancement of the Supreme court hearing. Any move towards setting the argument date earlier thus must come from the Brown forces or members of the Republican State committee.

OH, THESE WOMEN!

By LEOA ALLARD

The faith that passeth understanding is the faith that makes matrimonial proposals through the mails to strangers. We know what such faith gets, but what I'd like to know, is what it expects to get, and WHY. If anybody ever got a husband or wife that way and was happy, I'll give five dollars to know about it. If anybody was ever happy for a week with a matrimonial partner picked out of cold type, I wish they would tell me.

I once knew a woman who ran a column for lonely folks who wanted to meet each other in a great city. She was the world's greatest optimist. She was forever telling of the beautiful romances budding in her club. Usually the one thing these people had in common was loneliness. But that may be as good as any other excuse for making reckless promises. Somehow I got the idea that people to live their lives together happily, had to know something of each other except that they were both lonely.

Look at me! I print my picture and proposals come in. The picture is flattering. They tell me I write like I had sense so would I correspond, intention—matrimony. All one man told me was that he was the oldest of four, the rest married. Another wanted me to marry him for the California climate, the best excuse of any of them has offered. Another said he thought everybody ought to marry so wouldn't I? They didn't ask anything about my past or tell me anything about theirs. I assume they hadn't any.

As terrible as is loneliness, I wonder if it is as bad as the wrong kind of company. To wait on the doorstep every night for the wrong man. To sit across the table and hear the things that do not interest you. To go with people you don't like, to have the man's manners grate upon you so that you could drown him! You know what its like to attend a party for one evening with the wrong kind of people? Then what makes them think they can be matrimonially adjusted no matter what they are like?

Perhaps they figure love is such a gamble you might as well shut your eyes and jump. But it does seem that it would be advisable to look in the direction you are jumping.

I wish some correspondence wife or husband would enlighten me. Needn't sign your name.

TRAMPLING ART FOR PROFITS

FOR all its virtues, modern industrialism can run amuck under the spur of greed for profits. Witness, the ruin threatening the Art of Music.

300 musicians in Hollywood supply all the "music" offered in thousands of theatres. Can such a tiny reservoir of talent nurture artistic progress?

The true function of the machine is to increase the value of the product fed into it—not to debase it. Therefore mechanical music, as a substitute for Living Music, is a spurious form of progress—like a loom converting good wool into shoddy.

The grind organ, however operated, is a grind organ still. For music is an emotional art, a form of social intercourse, and hence dependent upon human contact.

Who profits by the elimination of genuine music from the theatre? Not the music-loving public!

GIRL BACK HOME BLAMES YOUTH

FRANKLIN, Pa., July 7.—Longing for a chance to "go West" and accepting the suggestion of a youth named

"Tom," she had met only a few evenings before, were the explanations offered by 15-year-old Frances Hulse for her sudden disappearance last Wednesday.

Friends and neighbors had hardly ceased dragging French Creek for her body when the girl climbed from a box car on the New York Central cut-off near Pecan Saturday, and was seen Saturday by section men who called Sheriff E. M. Voorhies. The youth who told her stories of riches in the West scampered up the hillside and disappeared in the dense brush.

"I didn't mean to run away, but I didn't think that's all," the girl said, explaining her escapade.

Eighty-Eight Boys At Heinz House Camp On Slippery Rock Creek

Hobby riding among Americans has assumed the proportions of a major sport. Collecting antiques, collecting old bottles, stamps or shaving mugs, tapestries or Persian prayer rugs, raising prize dogs or prize flowers, all of them fall under the heading of hobby riding, with usually the resultant good being kept in a restricted circle.

Occasionally one finds a man of means who has a hobby that benefits humanity, a hobby that has for its purpose the building of character, the strengthening of human bodies, and the improvement of the race. Such a hobby is the Heinz House Camp located in one of the most scenic spots of the Slippery Rock Creek. Here one sees the material evidence of a hobby that has brought sunshine and health to hundreds of boys and girls who otherwise might have never gotten away from the paving of the east Northside, Pittsburgh.

Eighth Season
This is the eighth season for the Heinz House camp on the Slippery Rock and each season sees more boys and girls out there. The camp is one of the developments of the Heinz House in Pittsburgh, a memorial to the memory of Sarah Heinz, wife of H. J. Heinz, founded the firm bearing his name.

Mrs. Heinz has always interested in the lads and lassies who were handicapped by reason of their family and environment. Where some women with the means she had at her command might have been interested in society and its trail of useless endeavor, Sarah Heinz devoted her time and money to helping the so-called "lower strata" and as a memorial to her memory, Heinz House was erected.

Built as a memorial to his mother, Howard, son of the late H. J. Heinz has made such work his personal hobby and today there are two houses in the Northside, Heinz House, and the Covode House, the latter's membership composed almost entirely of Polish and Croatian youngsters. The Covode House is at the corner of Progress and Heinz streets, while the Heinz House is at the corner of East Ohio and Heinz streets.

Summer Camp Busy
With the coming of July, the Heinz House camp is opened and during July it is composed entirely of boys. In August the girls are there. The Covode girls are there late in August and the Covode boys come out the last week in August and the first week in September. While J. J. Davey has general supervision of all the welfare work of the Heinz interests, the camp is directly under the supervision of Mr. Davey's associate, A. J. Jeffery, with George Taylor as physical director. All three of the men are graduates of the Springfield Y. M. C. A. college. Mr. Davey has been with the Heinz interests for 22 years as director of welfare work. Mrs. Clemenson and Mrs. Hughes, experienced cooks have charge of preparing the meals.

While the camp is non-sectarian in its creed, the religious and moral side of life is not overlooked and here along the quiet banks of the Slippery Rock the boys and girls see for themselves the wonders of a bountiful Creator. Under Mr. Taylor's supervision the youngsters play games, go on hikes, swim, boat and utilize every hour of the daylight hours in some health building, character developing activity.

Unique Dining Room
The dining room is one that any expensive summer hotel might envy. Located on a high bank it overlooks the creek below and meals are eaten to the accompaniment of the music of water babbling over stones. There are no long tables, but a collection of round tables and these loaded with wholesome food at each meal.

At the present time there are eighty-eight boys in camp, with the personnel changing each two weeks, although some of the boys stay for a month. A minimum of clothes is worn and bodies that might never get the direct rays of the sun in the city are in a continual sun bath as long as Old Sol is on the job.

There are 1000 members of the two welfare houses in Pittsburgh. There is a membership fee but one that brings a smile when it is quoted. Boys and girls between 10 and 12 pay twenty five cents a year, between 12 and 14, 50 cents per year, between 14 and 16, $1.00 per year, between 16 and 18 $2.00 per year, and between 18 and 22, $3.00 per year, and in addition the latter class must render 1½ hours service per week between October and May.

Worthwhile Work
The hobby, if one can call it such, is one that is paying magnificent dividends, not in hard money of course, but in the development of character, in helping a lot of youngsters to a chance in life, in giving them some of the beauties of nature that otherwise they might never enjoy. The Heinz House, while the hobby of Howard Heinz, has nothing to do with the industry whose name it bears. Membership is not confined to employees or to families of employees. It is for the boys and girls in the east Northside of Pittsburgh.

When the summer camp was first thought of, it was decided to locate it on the prettiest spot that could be found within a reasonable distance of Pittsburgh. After a search, the old Weingartner farm in Slippery Rock township was selected and here has been established a summer camp that is one of the prettiest sites of its kind in western Pennsylvania.

The living quarters are up on the hill from the creek, with the playground on the level stretch below. The dining room is on the hill overlooking the creek, while in the creek itself has been built a big swimming pool, with slides and diving boards installed. Beyond, on the hillside are all manner of flowers and plants, offering a wonderful outdoor laboratory for botanical studies.

"It's a wonderful work," said Mr. Davey, in commenting upon the work. "In my years of experience with the Heinz welfare work I have seen the practical result of it. Boys and girls have been given a new view of life, have been inspired to higher things educationally and morally and through the work thousands of boys and girls have been led to manhood and womanhood better prepared for the battle of life than they might otherwise have been."

NEW YORK, July 7.—A Butter-and-Egg-Man from The Bronx was fined the other day for flouting with a 58-year-old grandmother in a motion picture theatre.

The 1930 model Butter-and-Egg Man seems to have a smaller wheelbase than in former years.

Imports
If the new tariff included a tax on golf trophies, your old friend "Bobby" Jones would have been bankrupt the other day when his ship from England bumped into its New York dock. Incidentally, the Maestro of the Mashie objects to being referred to as "Bobby." Just why, he doesn't make clear.

To be affectionately hailed the world over by a nickname as colorful and full of character as "Bobby," should cause anyone to balk. However, a man's prejudice may not be worth much, but, at least, it's worth respecting. So, from now on, it's Robert Jones.

FAUX PAS
Speaking of "Bobby"—or, that is, Mr. Robert Jones, of Atlanta, Ga., recalls the time, a couple of years back, when he returned from Scotland wearing a laurel wreath in place of a hat, and New York gave him one of its characteristic receptions in a parade up Broadway, from the Battery to City Hall.

In the procession the Street Cleaning Department was represented by a band, whose leader, learning that Brother Jones hailed from Atlanta made a valiant stab at the appropriate by striking up the spirited strains of "Marching Through Georgia."

And the funny part of it was, the Street Cleaning Band walked directly

Now! 23,720 Beauty Experts ...the world over recommend Palmolive

—a professional endorsement the like of which has never been known in the entire history of beauty culture

NEVER, in all the history of beauty culture, has there been such universal approval of any product as is given to Palmolive Soap today. When trained, skilful professionals unite in recommending one particular soap, that recommendation is significant. And there are 23,720 such specialists, in 16 different countries, who consider Palmolive Soap the ideal means of keeping skin clear, lovely, wholesome!

The need of soap and water

Experts, in studying the skin, find that the pores secrete oil, dust, dirt and powder. These accumulations gather into hard little masses. Unless these masses are removed thoroughly and regularly, the pores become coarse, blackheads appear... and along come all those blemishes one wishes so to avoid.

Now, the one best way to remove impurities from the pores, is the bland, safe lather of Palmolive Soap. It gets down beneath the surface. It routs out dirt and dust without irritation, leaving the skin refreshed and glowing with natural color.

The specialist studies skin care, experiments with methods and products until the one best way is found. And 23,720 such specialists endorse Palmolive.

To get the best results, massage Palmolive lather gently into the skin of face and throat. Allow it to penetrate the pores. Then rinse it off, first with warm water, gradually with colder and colder. That's all there is to it! Use ice as an astringent occasionally if you have an oily skin. You'll love the refreshing, delicate afterglow that Palmolive leaves.

And, of course, you'll use it for the bath, too.

"Dammit!" replied the man's companion. "Who's the guy with the whiskers, with him?"

"Him?" said the first speaker, indicating Sousa. "Oh, that's Able Rosencumb!"

Serious Than At First Thought

Borer Cleanup Meets Success

The European corn borer cleanup in Crawford and Erie counties this spring was most successful according to R. H. Bell director, Bureau of Plant Industry, Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture.

Due to the decrease in infestation, only two counties were included in the area of enforced clean up this year. Last year, the clean up work was required in all or portions of four counties.

Pennsylvania farmers are ahead of growers in neighboring states in corn borer control efforts, according to entomologists who have observed conditions throughout the infested area. The department proposes to make a field-to-field survey of the entire infested district in Pennsylvania this summer.

Lawrence County Youths See Game

All C. M. T. C. Youths At Fort Washington See National League Game

(Special To The News)
FORT WASHINGTON, Md., July 7.—The entire civilian military training camp battalion of Fort Washington, Md., were the guests of the Washington American league baseball club Saturday when they attended the game played between the Washington Senators and the New York Yankees, played at Griffith stadium in Washington.

The battalion left Fort Washington via steamer for the city of Washington, the trip requiring about one hour up the Potomac river. On arrival in the city they were taken by street cars to the stadium where they were met by a band and then marched on the field to the reserved sections.

Although the men had been in camp but three days, their conduct, appearance and bearing brought forth hearty applause from the fans of the city who witnessed their entrance into the park.

The state of Pennsylvania can well be proud of the excellent appearance of these men. Their general attitude toward their military training indicates that this year's camp will be the most successful ever held.

There are almost 900 men in this camp from western Pennsylvania.

Radicals Get Nearly All Publicity Thinks New Senator From Delaware

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Staff Writer
WASHINGTON, July 7.—Radical statesmen get nearly all the publicity, according to Senator Daniel O. Hastings of Delaware. The senator, who recently agreed that he belongs in the conservative category, mentioned this in a recent informal after-dinner speech and has been getting scores of columns of publicity on the strength of it ever since.

He has a large scrapbookful of clippings already, quoting his utterance, commenting on it and analyzing it; the first time, he says, that he ever attracted so much attention in his life.

A jolly, humorous little man from Wilmington, he admits that he has to laugh at the fashion in which the newspapers turned the tables on him; nevertheless he still insists that, in doing so, they really are proving that he is right.

"It simply happened, by pure accident," explained the Wilmingtonian, "that I said something 'different' for once. And see how famous it made me overnight!"

"That's how the radicals get the spotlight—by being 'different'."

"On account of their 'difference,' they stand out."

"Let one man get up in a crowd and raise a howl, and which side is most noticeable?—the crowd—or the minority of one? The minority of one, naturally. The rest may disagree with him absolutely, but they talk about him."

"When the senate ratified the Kellogg peace pact a few months ago, how fast it reported?"

"Thus:

"Senator Blaine casts lone dissenting vote!"

"I don't complain," said the Delawarean cheerfully.

"On the contrary, we should give thanks that careful conservation is so predominant that it isn't considered news."

"However, I do say that a few public men seem to me to voice radical views simply for the sake of making themselves conspicuous. If so, I think it is reprehensible."

"When a senator actually changes his vote, after inadvertently casting it with the majority, in order to get it on the minority side—well, it surprises me."

"Not," qualified the Delaware lawmaker, "that I endorse the attitude of some conservatives toward the so-called progressive movement."

"It is a movement whose spokesmen in Washington evidently represent a substantial western public opinion. It is entitled to representation, like any other shade of public opinion, and to fair consideration."

"I'm not in sympathy with the theory that we have certain 'backward states' which ought to be seen and not heard."

"If there are sections with grievances, all of us should weigh them. Even though, they ask more than perhaps would be good for the whole country, at least we should endeavor to compromise; try to satisfy them."

What I would like to know: Is Senator Hastings as conservative as he thinks he is?

A skeptic concerning the dogma of "backward states," Senator "Old Joe" Grundy never would pass him 100 per cent; that much is certain.

Moreover:

Is he right in his belief that only radicals get much publicity?

I doubt it. Senators Fess, Smoot, Moses and David A. Reed are conservatives, if any ever were elected; they get plenty. "Old Joe" Grundy, the "backward state" man himself, has had too much, if anything.

The truth is the Wilmingtonian is quite a new senator; only appointed to fill out an unfinished term; not very well known. He seems original, entertaining. Those are the qualities that publicity lives on; not radicalism alone. If he wins next November, I fancy he is due to be distinctly the voice before long.

The Parent Problem by GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

Go Slowly To Aid Tot Who's Timid

While conducting a forum at the Virginia State Parent-Teacher Association at Richmond, Va., recently, I was asked about a three-year-old child, who by night or day was afraid to stay alone. "Every evening my girl asks me," the mother said, "Will she will not remain alone in a room by day even for a minute or two. I know I should do something but I do not want to expose her to fright."

Suppose you have such a problem. Work on the one by day. Proceed gradually. When you have occasion to go to another room, go as if you had forgotten wholly about the child. If he screams be deaf. Plan not to be absent but a minute or two at first. By and by make your errands longer and finally return only when you are ready to do so.

Be sure you are not always at home. If you have no occasion to go away, make one to go. Have no ceremony. Don't steal away. Go in a natural straightforward manner. Don't come back for "another hug and kiss."

While at home let Dad and other members of the family often minister to the child's needs. If he refuses to accept, let him do so; but don't ruin him by doing for the child yourself as he commands. If, for instance, he desires to have a story read, let Dad read it. If the child says "No, Mamma!" let him know that Dad reads, or no one does.

In the meantime go on staying with the child till he goes to sleep in the evening until you have his bad habits of the day corrected.

Then, when you are sure you have yourself completely in control, announce to the boy early in the afternoon something like this: "You are getting big now. This evening when you go to bed you are going to stay alone." When bed time arrives make the occasion a happy one. If he asks if you are going to leave him answer quietly "yes" but turn his attention quickly to something else. When he is ready for bed, tucked in, and every item of the bed time ceremony has been completed, check upon them to be sure none has been omitted. Ask him if he can think of anything else. Tell him you are not coming back. If he cries and begs, act as if you have no feelings at all. If you think best leave the light on in the hall and the door ajar. Then go and make your word good: don't return no matter how long he calls nor how loud and long he cries. Previously he had learned, of course, that he must not get out of bed.

Bye and bye you can have the door less and less wide open, until after a few weeks it can be wholly closed. Even if it is not its being open or party open will do no harm, perhaps, if the light from the hall does not keep him awake.

You who have children much younger do not teach them to have so much attention. If you do not always wish to be right by the child's side don't begin to spoil him now by making him expect you to be near; if you don't want to keep on staying with the child at night till he falls asleep don't stay with him the first time. Don't lie down once beside him, nor rock him once, if you don't expect to do so always. It is easy to avoid spoiling a child; pretty hard to break him of bad habits which you have helped him learn.

Little Boy Runs Into Automobile

Numerous Accidents Are Reported To Police Over The Week End

SEVERAL MACHINES REPORTED DAMAGED

As Bertha Smith, 1419 East Washington street, backed her car from the parking place on South Jefferson street onto West South street Saturday, a little boy, Ivor Lewis, Jr., ran up South street to cross over Jefferson street and ran into the rear of the machine and was knocked to the street under the car.

He got up and was taken to his home by Bertha Smith, who urged that a doctor be called. The parents, however, declined to have a doctor, stating that the boy was uninjured and only suffering from fright.

L. O. Nicholson, 224 Sheridan avenue, reported that his machine was parked on East Winter avenue in the McComb's Dairy company driveway, just east of Wilmington avenue, when the car of Leopold Sabesta, 220 Park avenue, Ellwood City, going north on Wilmington avenue, backed into and damaged his car.

Jesse Shaffer, of Ellwood City, R. D. No. 1, reported that he had stopped for the stop sign as he was going east on East Lutton street at East Washington street, before entering the latter street, as a car bearing Pennsylvania license LP81 going east on East Washington street made a right hand turn onto East Lutton street and hit and damaged his car.

T. W. Hamilton, of 911 Adams St., reported that he was enroute east on East Washington street, as a car bearing Ohio license 700-295 going south on North Mill street and making a left hand turn onto Washington street, struck his machine, causing damage to both machines.

H. Duffin, of 418 Moody avenue, reported that he was enroute west on East Washington street at Ray street, as a car bearing Pennsylvania license 542J going west on the street, hit and damaged his car.

McKelvey Porter, of Neshannock avenue extension, reported that he was enroute east on Neshannock avenue extension, just east of Rural avenue, when Ohio license 497-417 going west on the Narrows, hit and damaged his machine.

C. H. Jewell, of 3 East Moody avenue, reported that he was enroute west on East North street, when as he stopped for the red light at Mercer street, his machine hit a car that was parked too close to the street intersection on North Mercer street. Slight damage was done.

Harry H. Bollinger, of 939 Temple avenue, reported that he was enroute west on South Croton avenue, when a machine going east on Croton avenue, collided with his machine, some damage being done.

D. M. Dicks, of R. D. No. 3, reported that he was enroute east on East Washington street, near Beckford street, when he bumped into a car parked without lights, doing some damage to his own machine.

James C. Houston, of 507 Lyndal street, reported that he was enroute south on South Mill street, at East Long avenue, when the red light went on at South Mill street. In trying to stop, his machine skidded into the curb and was damaged. He was driving the machine of Stanley Watkins.

Mrs. Alice Deillo, of 901 South Mercer street, reported that he was enroute south on Liberty street near Clayton street when a car bearing Pennsylvania license 77294 going in the same direction, cut in front of Mrs. Deillo's car to get into a gas station and the cars came together. Some damage being done to both.

J. E. Shaffer reported to the police that he was enroute east on East Washington street in front of the Oldsmobile salesroom, when the car of Mrs. P. J. McDowell, 306 Northview avenue, parked on East Washington street east of Pearson street, backed into and damaged his car, as its brakes let go.

P. P. Mele, of 504 East Reynolds street, reported that he was enroute south on Cedar street near the first switch, when street car No. 364 hit and damaged his machine.

North Street Bill Still In Committee

Council today took no action on the ordinance, now in committee, which provides for the paving of the unpaved portions of North street between East street and Neshannock avenue.

"I am not opposed to the ordinance but before I vote I want to know approximately how much damage we will have to pay for the widening," said Councilman Burns.

The bill was brought up in committee when council met at city hall but at Burns suggestion it was not voted out of committee and will remain there pending an investigation of damages.

SHUT-OFFS NOT LOWERED. Councilman Burns today during council session said that while the New Castle Water company had promised to lower "shut-offs" along the sidewalks there are many still protruding upward and are menaces.

NEW YORK, July 5.—Longacre Lil informs me that the extra "pe" on the end of "shoppe" invariably assures you a fancy box, underweight (if your vulgar enough to notice it) and at least an extra two bits on the cash register.

LOTS OF MAMA
A young woman by the name of Paula Gould deluges me through the United States mail with detailed accounts concerning Sophie Tucker's weight.

Sophie, it appears, is on her way to London, from New York. In Thames Town, on Labor Day, she's going to stage the premiere of something or other, and according to Paula Gould Sophie is anxious to tip the beam at 185, feeling that America's leading professional Red Hot Mama should have as many curves as the dragon on the Chinese flag.

According to latest advices, on shipboard the Tucker lady gained 13 pounds 1-2 ounces.

Personally, the Pastor believes that none of the Congregation gives a cold smooth clam how much avoidpouts Sophie Tucker gains or loses. But Paula Gould, Sophie's female Boswell, is so patient and displays such unobtrusive persistence that her assiduity merits at least a paragraph of recognition.

And now, Paula, go and sin no more.

NEWSPAPER STUFF
One of the latest film releases is called "The Czar of Broadway"—a three-act squawkie with an Arnold Rothstein complex.

I viewed it twice. The first time, out of curiosity, the second time in a spirit of revenge.

The one big lesson the picture teaches is that all the stories you've heard about the lure of the newspaper profession are just so much twaddle, hokey, bunk and tripe.

"Why" rather bitterly, inquires the heroine of her reporter sweetheart, "why did you ever go into such a rotten racket?"

The embryo Horace Greley is stumped for the moment by the vituperative vehemence of his lady love. Then he admits that a cockroach just for ink drove him to a desk in the city room.

Straying deeper into the refinements of education he goes on to explain that once the cursed thing gets into your blood your fate is sealed, your day is done, your goose is cooked—in other words, you've got as much chance as a widow in Wall Street.

But his sweetheart's query does something to the young journalist's mind; and eventually we see him tearing up the front page story he is writing, throwing the fragments into the face of the managing editor, fore-swear subterfuge and vowing thereafter to "go straight."

I was a little sore at first at the lad's lack of control and his cavalier treatment of the managing editor; but later, when the managing editor called up the foreman of the composing room and ordered the presses stopped, instead of blaming the Boy Reporter for his impetuosity, I marvelled at his forbearance.

scribes jockey for advantage points of appearance—spots easy to locate in the sheafless sea of monickers.

The likeliest position in the volume is tail-end—the last of the names ending in Z; and with the issuing of the Summer directory, a three-year contest for the preferential place is brought to a close.

The Telephone Company, pained at the angry droning of a cluster of its Z subscribers, has eliminated all names with that letter that an individual cannot claim by birthright.

A sad consequence of this ruling lives Brother Zebediah Z. Zzyz out of the list of tail-enders and precipitates him into the very heart and core of the Murphys, where he is listed with no other distinction than that imparted by the initials, J. C.

Brother Murphy first appeared in the book in the Winter of 1928 under the name of H. C. Zzyz; but in that issue he was third from last, being issued out by two lads named Putnam and Browne, who were listed respectively as Zzyz and Zzyz.

Last Winter Murphy made a valiant stab for last place under the pseudonym of Zebediah Z. Zzyz; but he couldn't wriggle out of third place his expedient having been forestalled by Putnam and Browne who clung to the position with Zzyz and Zzyz.

And now the contest is over. Murphy and Putnam and Browne have left the field bearing their scars proudly, while the coveted cellar niche is awarded to a newcomer—a tyro—D. Zywokaria.

Services Mark Day At "Y. M." Camp
Regular Program Suspended At Camp Rent; Parents Pay Boys Visit

(Special To The News)

CAMP FRED L. RENTZ, July 7.—Outside of the morning chapel service at which Camp Director William A. Thomas spoke on "The Observance of the Sunday," and the evening vesper service at which the Rev. S. L. Maxwell, pastor of the Epworth M. E. church here delivered an address on "Friendship," activities were at a standstill among the 71 boys, Sunday.

Owing to the fact that it was Sunday, the rising hour was delayed. Immediately after rising a morning bath in the Slippery Rock was enjoyed, and the chapel service followed.

Parents and other guests were present for the vesper service last night. The second week of camp got under way this morning.

No Action Taken On Sidewalk Notices

Council today received a report from Sidewalk Inspector Mosely relative to walks in Delaware avenue, Shenango street, Butz street, Park avenue, Highland avenue, Laurel avenue and Boyles avenue. Councilman Burns reported also that the grade of certain streets had been changed and that this had caused "step-ups" to driveways. Council did not instruct the commissioner of streets to advertise for bids pending further discussion Friday.

May Start Repaving Here Next Week

Harry Hoskins, assistant to City Engineer P. F. Miller stated today that the Croton avenue storm sewer will probably be entirely complete Saturday and that Woods & Golder will start repaving the avenue between the city line and East Brook road next Monday.

Exclusively for Men and Young Men

Now you can always be sure your clothes will fit like new—have them FORMPREST

It is now possible to have your suit pressed to fit your form, just like it did when it was new. Think what this means to you. Keep your clothes fitting just as well as they did when new. Of course, to achieve this result requires especially adapted machinery, and we have spared no expense to make Formprest Service available to the men of this community.

You know from experience that it is impossible to have form-fitting garments when your suit is ironed or flat-pressed. If there is any question in your mind about this, just take a look at your suit. Notice how the collar is shaped—see how the shoulders are formed—look at the contour of your coat front. You can readily see that flat pressing cannot form these parts properly.

With our two complete Formprest Batteries we press every part of your suit to fit your form, just like it did when it came from the maker. No other pressing service can give you the results of FORMPREST.

We gladly call for and deliver your suits FORMPREST shape. It costs no more than ordinary pressing. Suits formprest, only 50c. Call us today. Smiths, Cleaners and Dyers, phone 885.

The Parent Problem
By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

Keep Calm If Engaged In Argument

"Had a round with my mother this morning" said a girl of eighteen. "My sister or I have one with her every morning."

A successful business man once told me that his thirteen-year-old girl and her mother were "always fighting." "One day," said he, "when I came home I stepped into the row. I got a piece of board and gave that girl a good beating." In both the homes mentioned there is evidence of fair intelligence, so-called. The boarding-beating father is a college graduate, a handsome man, well dressed. Such conduct by parents in this year of 1936 is hardly thinkable.

Too bad that any parent ever uses his tongue as a means of punishment. "No" ought to mean "No" to the child, regardless of its pitch or harshness. Our tongue ought to be our means of comfortable, happy and companionable communication with the other members of the family.

We parents ought to be too proud and dignified to stoop to childish things. When children quarrel with one another a favorite resort is tongue rivalry in the utterance of mean things. Children with their limited experience and limited sense of social and moral values hardly can be expected to be considerable ways of their comrade's rights and feelings.

But we parents should know better, should be more cultivated, ought to have more self-control.

We desire always to be reasonable with the child. We want to prove to him that we never make a decision, never utter a command that is not justified. It does not follow that the moment when the child does not welcome our decision, when he is emotionally stacked against us, is the time to justify ourselves. Our fairness to him, and the reasonableness of our command are best observed through the day by day experience. The child who has observed that we always had been reasonable will learn to accept our decision at critical times unless we encourage him to challenge us, and embroil us in an argument so as to escape the unpleasant task confronting him.

As a rule, it is well to proceed as follows: Never to give a command until you are certain of its justice. If you are not sure it is likely to be accepted as reasonable and fair explain as much as you consider necessary. But once the command is made expect the child to carry it out. Let him know that when he has executed the command he can come back and say anything to you he chooses, and

Attempt To Shoot Niagara Falls In Barrel Is Fatal

Barrel Goes Over But Man In
It Is Suffocated To Death

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., July 7.—George Stathakis was suffocated in the barrel in which he attempted to navigate the rapids above Niagara Falls and plunge over the cataract, according to Coroner W. W. Thompson of Niagara Falls, Ont. The body was removed from the barrel Sunday afternoon. The barrel, intact, was sighted shortly after 6 o'clock Sunday morning by Canadian observers at the Canadian end of the Falls View bridge. It was bumping against the rocks on the Canadian side of the river.

William (Red) Hill, veteran riverman and his son, William, Jr., descended into the gorge and after much difficulty, the barrel, weighing more than a ton, was taken to the Canadian shore, near the Falls View bridge. It was floating end up, but the manhole through which Stathakis entered, was on the submerged end. Stathakis' body was still stapled to a mattress which he had designed as a buffer.

If Coroner Thompson's diagnosis is correct, Stathakis was a prisoner in the barrel for several hours before he succumbed. His supply of oxygen was good for about three hours. There was hardly a bruise on the man's body.

Police Clamp Lid On Crazy Driving In Fayette County

UNIONTOWN, July 7. — Although the reckless and drunken drivers rampant during June, it was not until the official report of deaths for last month was issued by Coroner S. A. Baltz that the full realization was brought to the people of Fayette county.

Coroner Baltz listed 10 persons as victims of motor cars during June. State highway patrolmen have investigated more than two score motor accidents, many of which have been caused by hit-and-run drivers.

The head of the state highway motor patrol declared today that he and his men intended to clamp the lid down on "this crazy driving." "There is no excuse for this high number of motor accidents and fatalities in Fayette county," declared the head of the local patrol, who indicated that a drive against reckless hit-and-run and drunken drivers would be started.

Western Section Of State Hit By Electrical Storm

Western Pennsylvania Residents
Check Severe Storm
Damage Today

(International News Service)
PITTSBURGH, July 7.—Residents of Western Pennsylvania towns and cities were taking account today of possible losses suffered yesterday and last night when a series of thunder storms accompanied by lightning and in several places hail struck this section of the state.

Damage was many to power lines and is not expected to run high. Radio fans were victims of the storms when a bolt of lightning struck a power line of Radio Station KDKA's transmitter, located along the Pittsburgh-Greensburg Pike, disabling the station for several hours. Broadcasting was not resumed until today.

A second bolt of lightning struck a receiving set in a building in Houston, near Canonsburg. Fire which followed spread to a store on the first floor, igniting fireworks and doing $7,000 damages to the store and apartment above.

The Turtle Creek section was without electricity for an hour and a half last night as a result of lightning striking a Duquesne Light service station near Turtle Creek. Pitcairn was in darkness for a half hour because lightning burned out transformers there.

(International News Service)
BERLIN, July 7.—Max Schmeling, world's heavyweight champion, suffered a rupture of veins in his left side when Jack Sharkey fouled him in their fight for the title, it was stated today in a medical certificate on his condition issued by Professor Wilhelm Baetzner, surgeon at Berlin University.

The injury will necessitate a complete rest of two or three months and perhaps an operation, it was said.

"Schmeling surely will be able to fight again," Dr. Baetzner said. "Decision as to the operation will be made after the period of rest."

CORN BORER OFF TO EARLY START

U. S. Station Near Sandusky Reports Pest Is Week Ahead
Of 1929

SANDUSKY, O., July 7.—The female corn borer is laying her eggs about a week earlier than usual this year, according to L. H. Patch, head of the corn borer laboratory maintained by the United States Department of Agriculture near here.

Incidentally, Patch and a number of assistants are busy assembling data concerning the pest in the hope that some day the borer may be controlled, if not eliminated.

Approximately 20,000 female corn borers are laying eggs in captivity for experimental purposes, Patch says. The borers are confined in screened areas at the laboratory and their eggs are used to infest some 30 strains of corn. Five of these strains have been imported from Europe and one from South Africa.

Patch and his helpers are testing the comparative resistance of these strains to the borer's activities. It is believed that some strains may be able to produce a better crop than others, even though attacked by the borer.

Approximate damage to corn and reduction in amount of yield, together with factors bearing on borers survival, are matters that are also being studied.

Patch found among other things, he says, that the percentage of borer eggs producing mature borers on the same variety of corn, planted on the same date, is highest on the corn that grows the fastest.

OHIO IS LASHED BY HAIL STORMS

Damage To Crops Is Estimated At Thousands Of Dollars

CLEVELAND, July 7.—One of the worst hailstorms in many years caused thousands of dollars damage late yesterday in central and north-eastern Ohio, missing Cleveland by just a few miles and leaving hailstones three inches in diameter in the streets of Wellington, Lorain county, according to dispatches last night.

Many trees were blown down as a storm raged over Kelley's Island near Sandusky between 2 and 3 p. m. The grape crop was reported badly damaged by hail.

Islanders and hundreds of Sunday visitors were frightened as the storm broke, fearing a tornado. The storm apparently missed the mainland at that point.

At Wellington many windows were broken by hail stones, said to have been the largest in the memory of old settlers.

Farmers in and around New Philadelphia and Dover in Tuscarawas county reported that the hail, which struck about 5 p. m., caused thousands of dollars of damage to uncultivated wheat, oats, gardens, corn, trees and buildings. The storm was the worst in years in the vicinity.

All the windows in one end of the Herbert hotel at Dover were shattered, as well as all the windows on one side of N. Wooster avenue. Tops of many automobiles were pierced by the large hailstones.

Hailstones in Tuscarawas county were reported to range from hickory nut to walnut size.

Earlier in the day a barn on the Adam Schilling farm near Strawsburg was destroyed when struck by lightning.

Notables Will Be Guests Of Moose At Conneaut Fete

"Fraternal Day" Celebration
Promises To Draw Hundreds On Thursday

New Castle and Lawrence county officials will be guests of honor together with half a hundred prominent Pennsylvanians at the Fraternal Day celebration at Conneaut Lake Park on Thursday, July 10, being held under the auspices of Sharon Lodge No. 292, Loyal Order of Moose.

Invitations have been extended to J. L. Hildebrand and James A. Chambers, along with Mayor William H. Gillespie. The guests of honor for the day will include city and county officials from all over this part of the state.

While the affair is sponsored by the Sharon Moose, invitations have been sent to the Elks, Masons, Eagles, Knights of Columbus, American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Spanish War Veterans, Knights of Pythias, I. O. O. F., Fraternal Patriotic Americans and other fraternal bodies.

Senator-elect James J. Davis, now secretary of labor, will head the guest list, and will deliver the principal address of the day. Arrangements have been made to run three special trains to the lake from western Pennsylvania cities, to convey guests and other participants to and from the scene of the day's festivities.

A program of music by the Welsh people; a visit by the Goodyear Zepplin; an afternoon and evening dance; a program of boxing bouts, and a reception for Secretary Davis and other notables in Hotel Conneaut will comprise the program of the day.

A partial list of the guests for the day besides those already named include the following:

Judge J. A. McLaughlin, Mercer; Judge James P. Campbell, Butler; Senator David A. Reed, General Edward Martin of Harrisburg and Congressman J. Howard Swick of Washington.

Committees have also interviewed Governor John H. Fisher and Governor Myers Y. Cooper, of Ohio, as well as Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis. It is believed they will attend.

Theory Versus Fact

By S. S. MYERS

"When I studied astronomy I was taught the Nebular Hypothesis regarding the formation of the solar system. Now that has gone into discard and the Tidal theory has taken its place. But just recently I read an article which claims that neither theory is correct. That writer says that the only true children of the sun are the four minor planets. But he fails to explain away the four major planets. Which of these theories is true, or does any one know the truth?"

(A Student)

Truth is something scientists have been searching after down through the centuries. It must be borne in mind that there is a difference between a theory and a fact. No astronomer accepted the nebular hypothesis as an established fact. It met many of the requirements of mathematics and physics, but not all of them. Hence, while it was a very plausible theory, it never became a proven fact.

The researchers of Professors Jeans, Montgomery and others developed the Tidal theory, and while there is much going on in the heavens to substantiate it, there are still some things it fails to account for, especially the vast difference between the major and minor planets. It is still a theory and no theory is accepted as a fact until it has met every requirement necessary to prove it a fact.

The latest theory is that Mercury, Venus, the earth and Mars are the only real offsprings of the sun. It is well known that the sun is continually in a state of eruption, throwing off immense columns of matter thousands of miles out into space; yet at present, this matter always falls back into the sun.

However, at one time, there was an eruption of great violence which threw a portion of matter so far into space that it failed to fall back. In obedience to the laws of gravitation and centrifugal force it began to revolve around the sun and condensed into a globe. Thus was born the planet Mars. Then, in turn, at intervals, the other planets—earth, Venus, Mercury were thrown off in like manner through unusual violent eruptions.

The major planets must be accounted for by an entirely different hypothesis. For instance, our sun with its four planets, while journeying along through space came so near to a nebulous mass that it was drawn into the gravitational field of the solar system. Being thus captured and carried along, the nebulous mass gradually strung out and broke into sections which condensed into globes forming the major planets. The more dense portions, which were drawn nearest to the solar system, condensed into small globes and strung out into an orbit between Mars and Jupiter and is known as the Asteroids, scattering portions of that nebula which failed to condense into one or the other of the major planets, formed the comets and meteors.

This theory seems to account for almost everything, and especially the difference in density between the major and minor planets, and is in accord with the physical laws of the universe. Yet it is only a theory and must remain so until thoroughly tested and proven a fact.

Use Of Parachutes Rapidly Increasing

50 Fliers Have Joined Caterpillar Club Since First Of Year

BUFFALO, N. Y., July 7.—Figures just compiled by the Irving Air Chute Company Inc., indicate that the number of people who are using the parachute for escape in emergencies from unmanageable aircraft is rapidly increasing.

Geo. Waite, president of the company, points out that this is not due to any increase in air accidents. On the contrary, the safety ratio is more favorable than ever before. But air traffic and civilian fliers are using the air chute much more widely than ever before.

Since the beginning of this year approximately 50 persons have joined that mythical organization, known as the Caterpillar Club, by saving their lives in emergency jumps. More than half this number were saved during two months, April and May.

Included in the list is one girl, Miss Mildred Kauffman, who was thrown out of her plane on March 30, two miles skyward, over Buffalo Airport. Included in the list are 17 civilians, of which Texas and Pennsylvania with the greatest number were tied with four each. Three civilians jumped in California, two in New York and one each in Arkansas, Kansas, Michigan and New Mexico.

This civilian list is considered particularly significant inasmuch as only one civilian Caterpillar appears in each of the years 1924 and 1925. There were but five in 1926, three in 1927 and nine in 1928. The number for the first five months of this year is more than double the number for the same period last year, indicating a comparatively sudden acceptance of the parachute among civilian users in this country.

However, both branches of United States military service produced more Caterpillars this year than did the civilians. Included in the total list there are eight English Caterpillars. All were members of the Royal Air Force. Two including a chaplain were saved near A. Suier, Egypt and one was saved in Shanghai, Iraq. One Japanese member, a lieutenant of the Imperial Japanese Air Force attached to the English Royal Air Force, was saved near Hornchurch, England. One member of the Swedish Royal Air force and one member of the Siamese Royal Flying Corps also were saved.

NOTHING SAVES SO MUCH—
Trouble as a tongue that can be controlled in emergencies. Money is the ability to say no to one's self. Quarreling as a willingness to wait until all the facts are known. Fighting as knowing which principles are really worth fighting for. Heartache as the old fashioned virtue of plain thoughtfulness. Sleeplessness as an ear sensitive to the voice of duty. Humiliation as a strict loyalty to honest convictions.

The Way OF THE World

By GROVE PATTERSON

CHANGE

A pessimistic German philosopher once wrote that the tragedy of life was change. We may never count on things remaining the same. This grieved him greatly. And yet, it would seem to most of us, who are not philosophers, but just observers of life and people, that it would be much more tragic if there were no change. Pascal, another philosopher, who was a Frenchman, wrote: "Time heals all griefs and dissensions, because one changes—one is no longer the same person. Neither the offender nor the offended are any longer themselves."

In what chains of grief and tragedy we would be caught if nature did not keep on doing her slow work, changing us, healing us, little by little making us forget.

GROWING OLD

The happiest old people are those who keep much in the company of people younger than themselves. They retain their love of the same things that youth loves. They reminisce little. They look forward to good times to come. Thus they provide happiness for themselves and others.

EQUALITY

We are not born equal to anybody in particular. Every man is not as good as any other man. We only make ourselves equal to someone else when we possess qualities as good as he has. There is no such thing as being born equal or being made equal by a system of government. We can, if we will, be equal to the best, but it is a hard job and takes a long time.

TAKING AN INTEREST

Most of us at some time or other, tired of people and work, and the old routines of life, think we would like to live apart from the world, surrounded by a high wall with broken bottles on the top of it. The chances are that after the first week we would be eager to come out through the gate, go down town to the store, and stand on the corner and pass the time of day with anybody who would listen to us. There is a great deal more of happiness to be found in taking an interest in things and people than there is in ignoring them.

GOING TO EUROPE?

If you have not seen Quebec, New Orleans, St. Augustine, Concord, Mass., Charleston, S. C., and San Diego, Cal., you are not ready to go to Europe. Somebody might ask you questions about the most interesting things in America and you would be embarrassed.

MORE SCENERY

Also before you are ready to pass an opinion on the Alps be sure you have seen the Canadian Rockies and the Grand Canyon. The real understanding of anything lies in one's capacity for comparing it with something else.

AMBRIDGE TEAM DEFEATS ELLWOOD

Lop-Sided Game On Ellwood
Grounds On Saturday—
Score Is 10-1

ELLWOOD CITY, July 7.—Ambridge won its first contest in the Beaver county league when they bumped off the Ellwood City club by the score of 10 to 1 in a one-sided tilt at the local grounds on Saturday. It was a poor day for the Tubers and the away crew took advantage of the opportunity.

Fitzgerald started Ellwood off in a snappy fashion by clouting out a home run in the very first frame. The Tubers seemed helpless in the remainder of the fray as the opponents continued to fatten their score and the locals were helpless.

It was not until the fourth period that the Ambridge aggregation started on their triumphal march with a lone tally. In the next session they crossed the plate three times but failed to collect any markers in the following session.

Testa, Ellwood's latest addition to the pitching staff, had a poor seventh inning when he was bombarded by the opponents who garnered four tallies. Mundo was sent in to relieve him.

With Mundo hurling the enemy was quieted down but again became furious in the eighth when they collected two tallies to make a total of ten.

Troupe hurled a fine game for the winners as he held the Tubers to seven scattered hits. Schlous, another new face in the local lineup, collected two of them, one of which went for two bases. Four bingles went to Cowie, Volpe, Mundo and Clarke and Fitzgerald socked out a home run.

To say that anyone started for the winners would be hard to say for the work was divided among Greer, Burns, Hester and Patterson, who all had two hits and crossed the plate twice with the exception of Burns who had three bingles. Bayrus also had two hits to his credit, one of them a double.

All in all the Ruskovir team seemed off form after playing a tough double-header the day before with Beaver Falls. There is little doubt that the strain was too much for the boys.

San Diego, like Troy, is about to do battle for a woman, and beauty is at the bottom of the fight. The Chamber of Commerce has taken up the cause of Miss Alberta McKellop, above, who won second honors in beauty contest at Miami, Fla., to select a representative for the international pageant at Rio De Janeiro. The committee in Miami barred her because it contended she did not live in California and likewise barred first place to the winner because she was married. HIGHLIGHTS OF HISTORY

By J. Carroll Mansfield

1. The Puritans—The King vs. The Puritans

IN THE EARLY 17TH CENTURY THERE WERE MANY PEOPLE IN ENGLAND WHO WERE DISSATISFIED WITH THE CEREMONIES AND DOCTRINES OF THE STATE RELIGION, THE CHURCH OF ENGLAND.

SOME OF THESE DISSENSERS LEFT THE CHURCH; OTHERS WISHED TO REMAIN IN THE CHURCH, BUT SOUGHT TO ELIMINATE MOST OF ITS CEREMONIES AND SIMPLIFY ITS GOVERNMENT. THESE REFORMERS BELIEVED THAT THESE CHANGES WOULD "PURIFY" THE CHURCH, HENCE THEY WERE CALLED "PURITANS."

BY 1625 THE PURITAN PARTY IN ENGLAND HAD BECOME VERY POWERFUL, AND NUMBERED MANY MEN OF WEALTH, CULTURE AND INFLUENCE AMONG ITS MEMBERS.

THE PURITANS WERE SOBER, GOD-FEARING PEOPLE, REGULATING THEIR LIVES BY THE SCRIPTURES, SHUNNING ALL WORLDLY VANITY AND FRIVOLITY. THEY WERE REGARDED WITH SCORN AND SUSPICION BY THE GAY CAVALIERS OF THE KING'S COURT.

CHARLES I, WHO HAD COME TO THE THRONE IN 1625, WAS DETERMINED EITHER TO FORCE ALL NON-CONFORMISTS TO ACCEPT THE STATE RELIGION OR "HARRY THEM OUT OF ENGLAND."

(Copyright, 1930, by J. Carroll Mansfield)

LIFE IN ENGLAND SOON BECAME INTOLERABLE FOR THE PURITANS. MATTERS GROWING WORSE, MANY PURITANS RESOLVED TO MIGRATE TO AMERICA TO ESCAPE ROYAL OPPRESSION.

Bobby Jones Is Favored To Win National Open

Minneapolis Course This Week Will See Jones Fighting For Third Title

EXCELLENT FIELD TO OPPOSE JONES

By DAVIS J. WALSH International News Service Sports Editor

NEW YORK, July 7.—The overture is stilled, the lights are lowering and out in the body of the house, falls the vital twinkling hush that seems to be the inevitable prelude to a big moment. The curtain is about to rise upon the drama that only a great open golf championship can inspire, greater than ever this time because Bobby Jones, the big two-time man just in from England, is playing everybody for his third championship of the year and the thing they call human-interest will go in for a veritable orgy of emotionalism.

The open championship will be played over the Interlachen course at Minneapolis on Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week and, while the pressure of the 72-hole contest is on, its suspense will fairly clutch a nation by the throat.

Jones Is Favorite.

Jones, back from England and his tremendous victories in the British amateur and open championships, is the sentimental favorite because the four major championships of America and England are the goal of his heart's desire and everybody loves a winner. He also is the practical favorite, it being considered execrable taste to bet against success. And Jones, with his record of eleven major titles since 1923 and the fact that, with one exception, he has been no worse than second in the open since that year, represents more than success. He practically stands for infallibility.

Not Jones Course.

The odds say he will fall this time. He has won too much; tired, sated with honors, he is due to lose. Some trace an affinity between Interlachen and Oakmont and aver that this isn't the type they call a Jones course, which is so much hair tonic. When Jones is playing golf, every course is strictly a Jones course.

Another thing, if Jones can win two championships in England when he isn't, by the admission of himself and others, playing golf he can win one championship when he is. It is characteristic of Bobby Jones to be off stride for longer than a day or two at a time. By a natural sequence of events, he would be hitting his shots again in the old, lashing Jones way at Minneapolis—if it wasn't for the suspicion that St. Andrews and Boylike took more out of him than nature yet has been able to put back.

Who Can Beat Him?

However nobody has the temerity to ask, who will beat Jones at Interlachen? A more sensible query would be, who can beat him?

There are five men who face a great chance of success in this connection, namely, Horton Smith, Leo Diegel, Ed. Dikler and Walter Hagen. Hagen, fresh, supposedly well trained and doubtless determined, looks the part of Jones' arch-rival. He is without a title of any kind for the first time in many years and, with this inspiration to goad him on, Hagen will take plenty of convincing. Sarazen, another ex-champion, who has staked everything on the winning of the open, is playing his iron with all of the old precision, which means trouble for anybody and everybody. Farrell, the 1923 champion, showed a flash of the old stuff in the New York state open and may again be the man he was two years ago.

Neither do I think that Espinosa is the man to recover from the 12-stroke denunciation by which Jones won the 1929 championship in a playoff that was strictly a playoff from the moment they arrived at the first tee.

Nor is Mac Smith the man he once was—and it is a matter of record that, whatever he was, it wasn't enough.

Hagen, fresh, supposedly well trained and doubtless determined, looks the part of Jones' arch-rival. He is without a title of any kind for the first time in many years and, with this inspiration to goad him on, Hagen will take plenty of convincing. Sarazen, another ex-champion, who has staked everything on the winning of the open, is playing his iron with all of the old precision, which means trouble for anybody and everybody. Farrell, the 1923 champion, showed a flash of the old stuff in the New York state open and may again be the man he was two years ago.

Diegel would have won his first open in 1920, if Chick Evans hadn't taken so much trouble to tell him how to do it. He has won none since. He is due now. He, in fact, will always be due—until age withers and custom stales his infinite variety.

Shute And Dudley.

As for Shute and Dudley, they are young men with all of the strokes and the brash, impelling urge of youth behind them. Shute almost stole the show at the last open. He is a better golfer today. So is Dudley, a fact that his 142 in the qualifying round and his record 66 at Shawnee clearly establish.

But, when the last word is said, it all comes back to Jones, to say the man who beats Jones will win the open championship is to commit a bromide. The man who can beat Jones always wins the open championship.

HERE AND THERE IN SPORTS' LAND

Talking about fishermen, let it be known that while a lot of veteran anglers were trying to beguile the French creek fish it remained for Mrs. Jack Lewis to show her friend hubby, Jack, that as a fisherman he was not so hot (on the Fourth) but as a fisherman he could have no complaint. While Jack was trying to show her what kind of an angler he was she tossed in a line and out came a 2½ pound bass. Jack smiled and said "Lucky," but when she tossed the line again and pulled in another bass that sort of showed him that the bass had some other member of the Lewis family to reckon with in addition to Jack and Tom, their son.

And then there is Louis Hoon. He's camping along the Neshannock. He has formerly camped at Millburn and the fish in that section wouldn't come out whenever they heard he was enroute to the camp so he fooled them this season and is getting his share in the Little Neshannock.

Bob Meermans of the Y travelled to the boys camp along the Slippery Rock Saturday afternoon and told Eddie Fritz, Jr., he wouldn't mind seeing him catch a bass, never dreaming there was one lurking in the city.

Ed started out with the aid of a soft shell crab it wasn't long until Bob saw the fish janded. A little farther up the stream on the same day George Emery landed two bass which goes to show the water from the mines may have caused a lot of damage to the fish but that there are a few of the bass left in the Slippery Rock but fishermen say that emphasis can be placed on the few.

Henry Firpo, Louisville, slugger, who fought often here is now being groomed for a shot at Mickey Walker, according to a communication received from Eddie Mead his Cleveland representative. According to Mead he has posted a $2,500 certified check and has asked the National Boxing association to force Walker to defend his title against Firpo.

He says that Firpo will fight anybody and gives a list of the boys he has beaten and most of the victories came here. Recently he defeated Grover Mallini at Chicago and in the announcer's introduction Firpo was designated as being from New Castle, Pa. It was the second time the introduction was given Firpo in Chicago and he has won two fights there.

Should Bobby Jones win the American open and amateur golf tournaments it may be a loss for golf as Jones said while in Great Britain that he would never play again in an English golf tournament.

Kingsford-Smith flies with Mobiloil

In thrilling airplane dash from Europe across the Atlantic

Kingsford-Smith has landed safely.

Against the pounding headwinds of the North Atlantic—
Through barriers of densest fog and icy weather—
Over the course so many fliers have tried in vain—

The courageous Australian thrills the world with another daring exploit.

And again Gargoyle Mobiloil flies with the pioneers of aviation progress.

Confident of Mobiloil's dependable performance and low rate of consumption, Major Kingsford-Smith carried only 15 gallons for each of his three Wright Whirlwind engines. In spite of the gruelling trip, inspection showed the oil in excellent condition when he landed.

Mobiloil is proud to have shared in this new epoch of the air—just as it shared in Colonel Lindbergh's flight to Paris, in Rear Admiral Byrd's North Pole flight, and a long list of other epoch-making flights.

Drive in where you see the Gargoyle Mobiloil sign. Ask the dealer to refer to his Mobiloil Chart of Recommendations for the correct grade for your car.

NEW YORK STOCKS

Prices Are Lower In Early Market Trading

(International News Service)
NEW YORK, July 7.—Stock prices sagged sharply in the first half of today's session, and a long list of speculative favorites was hammered into new low ground for the year. There was a heavy accumulation of over the week and selling orders and professional bears were quick to take advantage of the early settlement to launch a concentrated selling attack all along the line.

U. S. Steel was forced down to 154 1/2 for a loss of 3 1/2 points. General Electric down 2 1/2 at 65 1/2. Westinghouse down 3 at 131 1/2. Radio down

1 1/2 at 33 1/2; and American Can A loss of 2 1/2 points at 114 1/2 in the utility group. North American down 5 at 89 1/2; Consolidated Gas down 2 1/2 at 103 1/2; American Waterworks down 3 1/2 at 80; and Electric Power and Light down 3 1/2 at 64 1/2.

Higher priced specialties tumbled down in precipitate manner. Air reduction continuing its wide break of last Thursday made a new low at 111 1/2, a further loss of 5 points. Case Threshing cracked 9 points to 160 1/2 and DuPont sold at a new low at 98, a loss of more than 2 points.

Jail Woman On Murder Charge, Paramour Slain

Mrs. Antoinette McCarris, Jailed As Result Of Death Of Man She Lived With

SMALL CHILDREN WITNESS TRAGEDY

(International News Service) NORRISTOWN, Pa., July 7.—While Mrs. Antoinette McCarris sat in a cell of the Montgomery county jail today facing a murder charge for the slaying of S. Lee, an ex-sailor with whom she eloped three years ago, relatives of the slain man had the body shipped to Lee's parental home in Norfolk, Va.

Mrs. McCarris lived happily with her lover on a farm in Worcester township near here until a few weeks ago when he became infatuated with a Philadelphia blond. Quarrels followed with Lee being shot to death on July 4th in their little farmhouse. Mrs. McCarris claimed a shotgun they had purchased to celebrate the 4th with was discharged accidentally but Montgomery county authorities after a lengthy grilling declared the case was one of murder and that Mrs. McCarris had shot her paramour to death in a fit of jealous rage. Then it was learned Mrs. Lee, as the woman had been known during the time she lived in this section was not the lawfully wife of the dead man, but was the wife of Frederick McCarris, a Portsmouth, Va., resident whom she deserted to elope with Lee, taking two of their three children with her. The children, Mary, 9, and William, 6, who witnessed the tragedy will be spared the ordeal of testifying in the courts, according to District Attorney Francis X. Renninger. They are expected to be turned over to their father. The father, however, indicated today he is not interested in the fate of the jailed brunette.

New Obstacles In Path Of Brown As He Seeks Signers

Francis Shunk Brown Finding It Difficult To Obtain Necessary Voters

(International News Service) PHILADELPHIA, July 7.—Francis Shunk Brown Sr. encountered new obstacles today in his efforts to have the entire vote of Luzerne county in the recent primary thrown out because of the use of perforated ballots.

Pinchot partisans claim that in the upstate district sentiment against the move to invalidate the entire vote of that county is such that it is becoming increasingly difficult for Brown workers to secure citizens who are willing to sign petitions asking for the opening of the ballot boxes so that proof of the perforations can be obtained. Three voters must sign the petitions in each of the 373 voting districts in order to complete the case before the supreme court, but according to the reports reaching here, voters who were favorable to Brown are now unwilling to sign the petitions.

If Brown is successful in his attempt to have the higher court reverse the ruling of the lower court, which held the ballots were legal, then he would supersede Gifford Pinchot of Milford as the successful gubernatorial nominee.

Pinchot still appeared unperturbed today over Brown's fight, but is going ahead with plans for a third party ticket in case the Philadelphia lawyer does win out in his contest before the higher court.

Attended a gathering in Beaver Falls yesterday where Mayor William T. Lewis was present. In the past year Mayor Bill has been in a state of flux, so to speak. He was Burgess and he was running for mayor. He was elected. Now he's been mayor for some six months or more but he will soon turn over the keys of the city for the keys of the postoffice for it will soon be Postmaster Lewis.

Like that lad in the history Alexander the Great, Bill will soon be sighing for new worlds to conquer. Alex if you will remember licked all the neighboring provinces and then because he didn't know anything about any other countries put on a first class peeve.

As a salad dressing, mayonnaise has its points of course. Don't ask me to name them for it take a friendly soul to do that. But when it comes to the place where some of the chefs in the local hash foundries get a mayonnaise complex, the time has come for stern action m'lads. Steps must be taken for who knows where it will end. Somebody will discover that mayonnaise is a good filler for pie and the chefs will be urged forward to newer heights.

There may be some excuse for a spot of mayonnaise in a sandwich, just a spot mind you, but to drench everything with it, to overwhelm the meat as it were, with a gooey plaster of the stuff is more than a fellow ought to be asked to stand for. We ought to organize a lodge or sumpin.

The succotash farm is coming in for a lot of questioning these days. Some of the city lads who never lived on a farm want to know what a succotash looks like. The answer is that it doesn't look like anything you ever saw before. And with a little more rain thank you, the crop is going to be in good shape.
